Arab-Asiatic Bid Gets Cool Nod

PARIS, Nov. 26—The United States agreed in principle Monday afternoon to accept the Arab-Asiatic proposal that representatives of the Big Four confer secretly with Dr. Luis Padilla Nervo of Mexico, president of the United Nations General Assembly, to see whether they could agree on a common proposal for disarmament and the abolition of atomic weapons.

Dr. Philip C. Jessup told the Political and Security Committee of the General Assembly Monday afternoon the United States would agree to the resolution, which was submitted Monday morning by Iraq, Pakistan and Syria, if a majority of the committee favored it and said the United States would state its views later on the instructions to be given to the conferees.

JESSUP VIEW

However, Jessup pointed out that disarmament was to have been one of the points on the agenda of the Council of Foreign Ministers and the Big Three deputies spent fourteen weeks in Paris last spring urging the Soviet Union to agree to a meeting of the council.

Circles close to the French delegation indicated it would also agree to the Arab-Asiatic proposal, although it fully shares the doubts of the United States about the usefullness of an attempt to find a common ground between the disarmament proposals submitted by the Western Big Three and by the Soviet Union. British circles reserved their position although it is believed Britain also would agree.

The attitude of the Soviet Union remained in doubt. Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky was not available for comment, but Faris El Khouri of Syria said the Russians "ought" to accept. He conceded however, that when he told Soviet delegate Jacob Malik over the weekend that he planned to submit the resolution Malik said only, "We will see."

DOUBT EXPRESSED

Jessup's decision was announced to the committee after not only the sponsors of the resolution, but Sir Benegal Rau of India had emphasized that there was no hope

Caudle Tells of Threats on Life

Caudle Vows Racketeers Tried To Rub Him Out

By CLAYTON KNOWLES
New York Times News Service, Special to The Atlanta Constitution

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26—Theron Lamar Caudle, recently dismissed as assistant attorney general, testified Monday that his efforts to crack down on racketeers in Charlotte, N. C., through the medium of prosecution for income tax evasions led to an attempt on his life about a year and a half ago.

A motorist hit the curb trying to run him down when he visited the city against the advice of friends who warned that he would be in danger, Caudle said.

In a dramatic account of the incident, the former assistant attorney general, asked to resign by President Truman because of "incompatible" outside activities, told a House ways and means subcommittee, investigating the thoroughness of tax fraud prosecutions under his regime, that the attempt on his life was made in broad daylight.

"I was erossing the street when I saw this car bearing right down on me," he said. "I jumped back on the curb. The car hit the curb. That's why I've not gone back to Charlotte. I was afraid of my life and I'm still afraid today."

This information was volunteered by Caudle in one of a number of statements which he and his lawyer, Bernard Gallagher of Washington, insisted he be permitted to make. Like others, it amounted almost to an outburst, in which the witness rose

Taft Asserts Foes Poured Cash to Ohio

By LUTHER A. HUSTON

Special to The Atlanta Constitution

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26—Senator Taft (Rep. Ohio), asserted Monday President Truman's statement that "special interests" poured huge sums of money into the 1950 campaign to re-elect the senator was "completely false." He said his opponents spent three times as much money to defeat him as was spent on his behalf.

The Ohioan proceeded to describe to the subcommittee on privileges and elections of the Senate committee on rules and administration, in a lively four-hour session, the campaign waged against him last year. He called it "a sinister conspiracy designed to punish me for my legislative activities in the United States Senate."

He said it was "scurrilous," "defamatory," "a complete distortion of the facts" and that much of it was "directed right from the White House."

Thus, although there was no direct reference to the 1952 Presidential campaign, what may become contentious issues in that campaign should Senator Taft become the Republican nominee, were never far from the surface of Monday's hearings.

Taft assured the subcommittee he is confident it would not permit "the President of the United States himself to use this committee as a political smear weapon."

It was emphasized by Senator Gillette (Dem. Iowa), the subcommittee chairman, that there was no contest of an election involved. The subcommittee, Senator Gillette stated, has received complaints from Joseph T. Ferguson, Senator Taft's opponent in the Ohio senatorial contest, of excessive campaign expenditures,

Ike Visions Success of NATO Aims

Greater Western Resources Cited

ROME, Nov. 26 — General Eisenhower made an inspiring speech to the North Atlantic Council Monday afternoon and in his first report to the 12 nations he serves assured them that "we can accomplish what we set our minds to do."

Despite the fact that he is easily and by far the most dramatic and influential figure at this assemblage in Rome of civilian and military luminaries of the Western world the general stressed the fact that he was the servant of the democratic alliance.

"It is your SHAPE headquarters," he told the ministers, referring to Supreme Headquarters, Allied Powers in Europe, pointing out that he had said the same thing to the chiefs of staff of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, sitting as the alliance's military committee, to whom he referred as "my bosses."

Both Eisenhower and W. Averell Harriman, chairman of NATO's temporary council committee which is examining the potential resources of the Western powers, pointed out that the North Atlantic coalition had four times the resources available compared to those of the Soviet bloc. Therefore,, they concluded that the goals which NATO had set for itself were entirely realizable provided that potential capabilities were properly employed.

The council had what would probably prove its most fascinating session Monday although nothing was decided. The hard facts, whittled out by debate, will start being formulated Tuesday. In the meantime the following salient points may be made concerning Monday's activities:

1. Eisenhower told the assembled ministers and generals that if any international body had one-tenth the powers of inspection in the Soviet Union which the Harriman committee had in request-

Works Slash Study Holds 3 Camps' Fate

By ALEX JOINER

The Fulton County Commission Monday ordered a study of a reduction in the county's public works program that may result in the closing of three of the county's five prison camps.

Such a reduction would transfer an undetermined number of convicts back to the state penal system, and transfer or abolish the jobs of a number of public works employees.

The commission also ordered a sanitary service referendum set up for areas unincorporated by the Plan of Improvement, and appointed two members to make reports later on a traffic underpass and paving projects.

In tackling the reduced public works program, commissioners voted down an immediate recommendation of County Manager A. E. Fuller and Public Works Director A. T. McDonald that four of the county's five prison camps be closed next year and all but 200 to 250 convicts be returned to the state, leaving only Bellwood Prison Camp in operation.

Commissioner I. Gloer Hailey offered a substitute motion

Dominicans Sign Missile Control Pact With U. S.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26 — (AP). The Dominican Republic signed an agreement Monday to let the United States set up installations in its territory to track and control experimental guided missiles.

This extends to around 1,000 miles the flight test range of the U. S. Air Force missile test center at Cocoa, Fla.

The agreement, to continue for 10 years, was signed at Ciudad Trujillo by U. S. Ambassador Ralph H. Ackerman and Dominican Foreign Secretary Virgillio Diaz Ordonez.

The State Department said the Air Force initiated the arrangement, because of the Dominican Republic's geographic position.

The base and launching facilities for the missile test center are on the Florida east coast in the vicinity of Cape Canaveral. The flight test range extends southeastward over the Atlantic.

Ask Ridgway To Clear Up Atrocity List

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26—(U.P.). General Ridgway will be asked to clarify the varying figures issued by his command on the number of United States prisoners slain by the Communists in Korea, an Army spokesman said Monday.

The statement coincided with reports from the temporary White House in Key West, Fla., that President Truman is checking into the atrocity reports. He may have a statement on the subject at a news conference Thursday.

The conflicting atrocity reports and the method of their issuance has caused considerable criticism.

Col. James M. Hanley, Eighth Army war crimes officer, reported Nov. 14 that the Communists had killed about 5,000 American prisoners. He later raised the figure to 6,270.

Ridgway said later there was direct evidence of 365 such killings and additional evidence the total might be around 6,000.

Still later it was revealed that Ridgway reported to the United Nations Nov. 12 that about 8,000 American war prisoners had been reported slain by North Korean and Chinese Communists.

GREATEST BOOK EVER WRITTEN

Noah Said Flood Would Come--- And Folks Shook With Laughter

By FULTON OURSLER
(Author of "The Greatest Story Ever Told")

CHAPTER THREE
Noah and the Flood

With heavy hearts Adam and Eve watched how the world was going. More and more they wondered at the divine patience that tolerated the growing impudence of their sons and grandsons, great-grandsons and now countless descendants.

Before the world was much older, Adam and Eve could see for themselves that the people in it, their own multiplying offspring, were as much like Cain as Abel; and they were forever making trouble for themselves and everybody else.

Not all the people hated God, nor declined to believe in His existence. There was Enoch, who was a good man and "walked with God." He was the father of Methuselah, who would live longer than anyone else in the human race, and whose grandson was Noah.

Another Enoch, born to Cain and his wife in the land of Nod, evidently took a perverse pride in his father's crime, since many years later one of his own descendants called Lamech was still busy boasting of that fratricide. Lamech, seventh in the line of Adam, wrote a song to please his wives, Adah and Zillah, and the burden of his music was the death of great-great-uncle Abel. To impress his wives twice over, he went on to chant of killings he had done.

He, too, had slain, as he declared it, in self-defense.

It was the good life of one decent man that lightened the dejection of God and kept mankind going.

Noah, the carpenter, worked hard building houses and carts. His three sons were his apprentices and worked with him, while his wife — legends say she was called Naamah — cooked and swept and dusted.

It was not far from Noah's 600th birthday that he heard the Voice:

"The end of all flesh has come before Me."

At those words of doom Noah trembled.

"The earth is filled with violence," God told Noah. "Behold I will destroy them, with the earth. Make you an ark of gopher wood —"

Noah soon understood that the ark was to be a kind of boat, to be divided into three floors, 300 cubits or 450 feet long, 75 feet wide and 45 feet high.

"A window shall you make . . . and the door of the ark shall you set in the side thereof . . ."

And the reason for this shipbuilding?

Churchill Rules Out U. S. Chief

By BENJAMIN WELLES
New York Times News Service
Special to The Atlanta Constitution

ROME, Nov. 26—On personal orders of Prime Minister Churchill—received here within the past 24 hours — the British delegation attending the North Atlantic Council meeting refused Monday to agree to name an American admiral as supreme Allied commander in the North Atlantic.

This action came only a few hours after General Eisenhower had personally urged the chiefs of staff of the 12 Allied nations to get on with the job of building a working defense organization for the Western world. One of the chief worries facing Eisenhower is known to be the delay of many months in naming a supreme commander for the Atlantic and in setting up a Middle East defense alliance.

The British delegation, according to highly-reliable reports, gave no reasons for their actions which was taken at a closed joint meeting this morning between the staff chiefs and defense ministers of all Allies.

Although 11 NATO countries including the U. S. recommended an American admiral be named, the British delegation declared merely that it would prefer "no discussion" of this issue at this time. Bearing in mind the case of Admiral William M. Fechteler—another American admiral who was prevented from becoming supreme Atlantic commander last winter by the objections of Churchill—other delegations acceded to the British request and turned to other equally pressing problems.

"It was damned embarrassing," one British expert remarked. "It put us in an awkward spot. We seemed to be blocking the wishes of everyone else."

Behind Britain's apparent intransigeance are two important factors, according to highly placed sources. First is that Churchill only assumed the reins of Britain a short time ago and has not yet briefed himself fully on all implications involved.

Second is that he is due soon to visit President Truman in Washington and there he will talk over a great many outstanding defense questions. Churchill is widely believed to be preparing to make a deal with Truman: To back an American for the Atlantic if Truman in turn will back a British general or admiral as supreme in the Middle East.

Allied Planes And Artillery Pound Reds

SEOUL, Korea, Nov. 27 — (AP). Allied warplanes and artillery pounded Communist positions on Korea's Western front Tuesday as truce negotiators met in Panmunjom to ratify a provisional cease-fire line across the peninsula.

The Reds loosed a rippling rocket barrage Monday night across the crest of "Little Gibraltar" ridge, but failed to follow up with an infantry attack.

The Communists fired waves of brilliant signal flares along many sectors of the front. Allied officials speculated the fireworks were in celebration of the cease-fire-line agreement.

Far East Naval Headquarters in Tokyo said Red shore batteries on the Kalma Peninsula scored a direct hit on the U. S. Destroyer Hyman in Wonsan Harbor Saturday. Wonsan is a badly-battered Red port on the east coast.

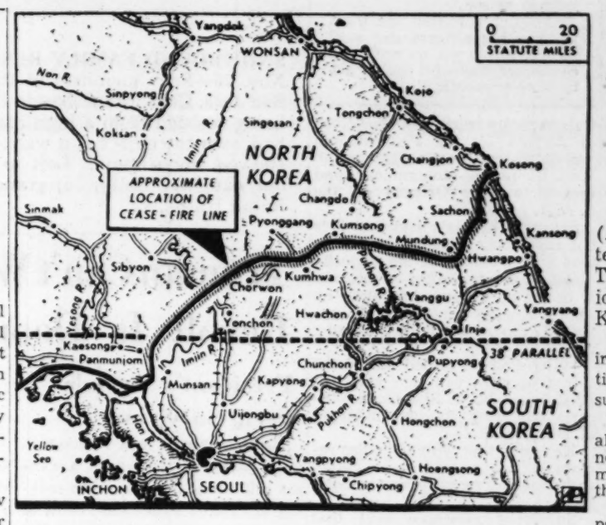

An official spokesman said there were no United Nations casualties.

LOCATION OF CEASE-FIRE LINE
Shaded Buffer Zones Extend 1¼ Miles on Each Side

Steel Allotted for Schools, Hospitals and Few Roads

By CHARLES E. EGAN
New York Times News Service, Special to The Atlanta Constitution

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26—Steel for the construction of 200 additional school buildings and 50 hospitals, and for a slight easing of highway construction limitations has been provided through a revision of first quarter allocations of scarce metals, Manly Fleischmann, administrator of the Defense Production Administration, told a congressional committee Monday.

Mr. Fleischmann told a joint congressional "watchdog" committee headed by Senator Maybank (Dem., S. C.) that "what we've accomplished for the schools in a time of steel shortage is nothing short of a miracle."

The special grant for schools amounted to 15,000 tons of carbon steel, including 1,500 tons of structural steel, to be added to the original allocation of 96,920 tons earmarked for such use in the first quarter of the coming year.

Fleischmann was the second witness of the day before the "watchdog" committee which is seeking guidance on possible amendments to the present Defense Production Act for consideration when Congress reconvenes. He was preceded by Michael V. DiSalle, director of the Office of Price Stabilization, and escaped much of the critical cross-examination which DiSalle faced at the hands of Senator Maybank, Senator Capehart (Rep., Ind.) and Rep. Brown (Dem., Ga.), the only committee members present.

DiSalle told the committee he believed that the "line can be held" on meat prices with the existing regulations and enforcement activities. He predicted a probable reduction in price ceilings of soap through a lowering of the present ceiling levels for tallow.

The price director again urged modification of the so-called "Capehart amendment" enacted by Congress in its last session and which administration officials have condemned in strong terms ever since. President Truman had

New England Scion Named As Stabilizer

KEY WEST, Fla., Nov. 26—(U.P.)—President Truman Monday selected Roger L. Putnam, member of an old New England family and one-time Democratic candidate for governor of Massachusetts, as the new Economic Stabilization Administrator.

Mr. Truman gave the 57-year-old Putnam a recess appointment, effective Dec. 1, to succeed Eric Johnston who resigned last week to return to his post as motion picture czar.

Putnam's nomination, which will be sent to the Senate for confirmation in January, climaxed Mr. Truman's "man hunt" among mostly unwilling prospects for the tough and controversial job of stabilizer.

Mr. Truman had considered a number of possibilities before he hit on Putnam, who was three times mayor of Springfield, Mass., and now is president of the Package Machinery Co. at East Longmeadow, Mass.

A native of Boston and a Harvard graduate, Putnam served in both world wars as a naval officer. He is married, is a Catholic, and has six children. His family name is one of New England's historic ones, coupled with the Lowells and the Cabots, and his wife is a direct descendant of Charles Carroll, the Catholic signer of the Declaration of Independence.

Permanency Of Zone Rests On 3 Issues

By WILLIAM JORDEN

MUNSAN, Korea, Nov. 27. (AP)—Allied and Red truce teams in plenary session Tuesday approved a provisional cease-fire line across Korea.

The buffer line was worked out in four months of bitter negotiations ruptured by several long suspensions of the truce talks.

It runs 43 miles north of parallel 38 on the east coast, 28 miles north in the center and dips 16 miles south of the old border in the west.

This cease-fire line will become permanent only if the last three issues on the armistice agenda are settled within 30 days—by Dec. 27.

ISSUES

All these issues—supervision of the truce, exchange of prisoners and recommendations to the belligerent governments on final withdrawal of all foreign troops from Korea—are loaded with difficulties.

If agreement on them is not reached within 30 days, a new cease-fire line must be drawn. But the truce teams will not sit down to that task until the other three issues have been settled.

The ratification meeting of the truce teams Tuesday was their first full-dress session since Oct. 26—the day armistice talks were resumed after a two-month break by the Reds.

After ratifying the cease-fire line, the committees recessed for lunch at noon.

They agreed to meet again at 2:30 p. m. to take up consideration of agenda item three, supervision of the truce.

20 MINUTES

The subcommittees needed only 20 minutes of their allotted hour to approve the buffer zone. They met at 10 a. m.

Maj. Gen. Henry I. Hodes, chief of the UN subcommittee, said the Communist subcommittee had praised the work of staff officers i mapping the actual cease-fire line.

He quoted the Reds as saying they "thought the staff officers did a helluva better job yesterday than the subcommittee had done."

"I said I had to agree to that," Hodes added.

Earlier, the staff officers had

Disregarded Signals Blamed in Wreck

17 Claimed in Train Crash; Streamliner Engineer Lost

WOODSTOCK, Ala., Nov. 26—(UP)—Rail officials said Monday 16 bodies had been taken from the interlocked wreckage of two streamliners but the 17th victim—the engineer whose disregard of signals allegedly caused the collision—still was missing.

Nearly 70 other persons were injured, most of them slightly.

Most of the fatal casualties were Negroes trapped in the second coach of the Southern Railway System's New York-bound Southerner. The Southerner pulled prematurely out of a siding and was hit head on by the New Orleans-destined Crescent Limited.

The collision occured at 3:15 p. m., CST, Sunday near this coal mining camp, about midway on the 60-mile Birmingham-Tuscaloosa run.

L. E. Wetterau, general agent for the Southern at Birmingham, said the missing but undoubtedly dead engineer, T. J. Powers, must have disregarded three separate warning signals.

The main one was "a red board" or automatic block signal denoting that the northbound main line was not yet clear after another train, a sister of the Southerner, had passed it on the siding, Wetterau said.

The southbound Southerner also gave visual and whistle signals that another train was running close behind it as a second "section," Joe Nall, chief clerk to the general superintendent of Alabama Great Southern Railway, said. The head train carried warning flags on its locomotive and sounded one long and two short blasts on its whistle.

"He (Powers) ran right into the red board," Nall said. "We probably will never know whether he answered the whistle signal, and if not, why not."

The Crescent does not normally run on the Southern's tracks from Atlanta through Birmingham and Meridian, Miss., to New Orleans. But on Saturday a tugboat smashed a bridge on the Louisville & Nashville line near New Orleans and that railroad's trains were diverted to the Southern.

The Crescent, a jointly operated train, usually runs from New York to Atlanta by the Pennsylvania and Southern, by the Atlanta and West Point to Montgomery and thence to New Orleans on the L. & N.

Southern officials said that it is not customary to notify engineers that trains bound in the opposite direction are traveling in sections. It is not an unusual operation on such a heavily-traveled route, especially during the holiday season, they explained.

"Why Powers pulled out of the siding only he can say, and he's dead," said K. C. Schultz, Southern's operating division manager at Birmingham.

He added that with 16 bodies recovered "we believe we've gotten them all out except the engineer, but we can't be sure."

Surviving crewmen said that Powers jumped just before the crash. He apparently was crushed in the toppling, twisting wreckage of his own train and the other.

The crash sent two baggage cars of the Crescent hurtling down an overpass embankment and bounced an empty head car on the Southerner on top of the second car. This car, a segregated coach for Negroes named "Mississippi," was a death-trap for many of its riders.

Truman Can't Win, Says Byrd; Revolt Is Doomed--McMath

President's Agenda Seen Surviving

NEW YORK, Nov. 26—(AP)—Gov. Sidney S. McMath of Arkansas said Monday night those seeking to destroy President Truman's program "will not be successful either in the South or in the nation."

However, he said at the Democratic national committee dinner, "I do not mean to say or imply that the South will be in the Democratic column in 1952 as a matter of course.

"This is not the case. The South will be a political battleground where we must carry the facts to the people in the same aggressive manner that the issues must be fought out in every other critical section of the United States."

The youthful governor noted there had been various predictions about how Southern Democrats will vote in the 1952 presidential election.

Those promoting a party revolt in the South, he said, "have as their objective not the election of a president, but the defeat of Harry S. Truman, in the event he is a candidate."

He added:

"They have as their purpose not the launching of a constructive program, but the destruction of the positive and dynamic program that is well on its way toward providing peace and prosperity for the American people."

This "negative approach," McMath said, "will not be successful."

He said "the embittered men who would splinter the Democratic party in order to destroy it are supported in large measure by special interests that have their headquarters outside the southern region.

"These special interests are representative of the more reactionary wing of the Republican party . . ."

Thinks Ike Would Win as Democrat

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26—(U.P.) Sen. Byrd (Dem., Va.) predicted Monday that President Truman will be defeated if he runs for re-election but said General Eisen- however could win the presidency as a Democratic candidate.

In a copyrighted interview in U. S. News and World Report, a weekly news magazine, Byrd reiterated his own bitter opposition to Mr. Truman and said anti-Truman sentiment in the South is "very much greater" than ever before.

He said he believes the chief executive "is going to run if he thinks he can win," and added that "I've been doing all I can to help him make up his mind: I do not think he can be elected if nominated."

Another Truman victory, Byrd declared, could "rightfully be claimed by him to be a mandate from the people to put through this (Fair Deal) program in its entirety," and southern Democrats might fail in their long fight to block civil rights measures.

Byrd did not say what he or other southern Democrats will do if Mr. Truman becomes the Democratic presidential nominee next year on a platform containing strong civil rights planks.

He said the southern group will ask the Democratic convention to restore the two-thirds majority once required to nominate, repudiate the civil rights proposals of Senator Humphrey (Dem., Minn.); reaffirm the Democratic party's support of state's rights, and reaffirm its support of the constitution.

Kefauver Is 'Mildly' Available

Prober Scorns Vice-Presidency

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 26 (INS)—Senator Kefauver, (Dem., Tenn.), said in Los Angeles Monday he wouldn't mind being his party's candidate for President.

He scorned the second spot, saying:

"I'm not interested in running for Vice-President."

Of his presidential aspirations, Kefauver said: "I'm not running away from the opportunity of running."

The crime-buster, who headed the recent and spectacular congressional investigation of organized crime, said "I'm beginning believe it will be Senator Taft for the Republicans unless General Eisenhower declares himself."

The Tennessee legislator declared the current disclosures of corruption in the Bureau of Internal Revenue are "very shocking" and will undoubtedly have an effect on next year's national election.

He described crime conditions in Los Angeles as "improved" since he conducted his probe here.

U. S. Helicopters Speed Wounded

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26—(AP)—Twelve Army helicopters in Korea carried 4,500 wounded from the battle lines between January and November of this year.

This was reported Monday at a Pentagon news briefing by First Lt. Joseph L. Bowler, an Army aviator who holds the record for having flown out more wounded than any other helicopter pilot in Korea. He brought out 806 men in 487 missions.

He was a member of one of the Army's three helicopter units which fly wounded from the front lines to mobile hospitals five to 30 miles in the rear. Each unit has only four helicopters.

Divorced Princess Yearns For Hot Dogs, Blue Jeans

PARIS, Nov. 26—(U.P.)—Blonde Lois Evans Olson, 23-year-old fairy-tale princess from North Dakota, announced Monday she has divorced Polish Prince Wladyslaw Gerzy Boguslaw Radziwill, 70, because he kept her from eating hot dogs and wearing blue jeans.

Miss Olson, whose Mexican divorce decree from the distinguished prince became final Monday, said the love paled three weeks after their marriage when she discovered Radziwill "brushed his teeth with hot water."

The princess, daughter of a Bismarck dairyman, said they agreed to separate five months ago and she went to Cuernavaca, Mexico, to get the divorce. They were married here on April 7, 1950.

PRINCESS FENCED IN

"Now all I want is just to be an American again, free to eat a hot dog when I want it or put on my blue jeans when I feel like it," Miss Olson said in an interview. "As a princess I couldn't do that."

She said the prince is a "wonderful guy," full of "charm and culture," but she couldn't keep up with the social pace he made her lead."

"Instead of a little home of our own which I could run, he had a 28-room villa in Cannes (French Riviere) with a dozen servants," she complained.

WILL DO OWN HAIR

"Instead of shampooing and doing my hair myself, he wanted me to have it done although I loved doing it myself. Instead of a tiny little restaurant in Paris, it too often had to be Maxim's."

"Our first fight came about three weeks after our marriage when I discovered he brushed his teeth with hot water," Miss Olson said.

"I couldn't understand it and told him so. He said he had always brushed his teeth with hot water and a big argument followed."

Three Atlantans in Wreck Are Home in 'Good' Condition

Three Atlantans injured in a streamliner smashup near Woodstock, Ala., were back home Monday night all in "good" condition.

"I know I'm lucky to be alive," said Mrs. J. G. Woolsey, 300 Amal Dr. Her husband and a brother-in-law drove to Birmingham Monday to get Mrs. Woolsey, who was uninjured, and Pamela, the Woolseys' 2-year-old daughter. The Birmingham Red Cross said Pamela was treated for a bruised left jaw and was dismissed.

Charles F. Shapiro, 1311 Briarwood Dr., N. E., flew to Birmingham Monday afternoon to return with Sandra, his 16-year-old daughter who was also treated in Birmingham for minor injuries.

The crash occurred Sunday when the Crescent and the Southern Railway's Southerner met head-on some 29 miles southwest of Birmingham in mid-afternoon. Schedules thrown out of kilter Sunday night were straightened out by Monday, railroad spokesmen said.

A special train traveling to New York brought Atlanta-bound passengers here at 2:20 a. m. Monday, six hours behind schedule.

Six Atlanta Negroes, employes of the railroad, were also injured in the crash.

They were listed as James F. Jones, 35, 203 Ollie St., N. W., a headwaiter, nose lacerations; Namon Brown, 20 Ashby St., N. W., chief cook on the Southerner, injuries to the left side and right hip; F. Davis, 265 Harvey St., N. E., cook, injuries to back and right leg.

Nathaniel Ricks, 34, 295 Flowers Pl., N. W., waiter, back and leg injuries; John T. Brinkley, 463 Simpson, N. W., released after treatment for minor injuries, and L. N. Pullian, 659 Sage St., Toccoa, cook, treated and released.

GE Confirms Data On Lightning Flashes

PITTSFIELD, Mass.—(AP)—General Electric Laboratories here have turned up some interesting facts in their studies with artificial lightning.

In the first place, lightning bolts don't come from the blue, and those lightning flashes don't hit the earth. Actually they jump skyward at a rate of about 18,000 miles a second. It could go three-quarters of the way around the world while you said "Look out!"

It works like this: As a lightning charge is being built up in the clouds, an opposite charge is building up on earth. The stroke travels slowly from the cloud and is invisible to the naked eye. Then when it makes contact with the ground, it spurts toward the sky in a quick flash.

Yugoslavs Blast Russia Before UN

Charge Political, Economic Vise

By WALTER SULLIVAN
New York Times News Service
Special to The Atlanta Constitution

PARIS, Nov. 26—In a three-hour presentation Monday Yugoslavia laid before the United Nations its detailed charges of increasing Soviet economic, military and political pressure directed at the overthrow of the government of Marshal Tito.

The statement was made to the political committee of the General Assembly. It concluded with Yugoslavia's proposed assembly resolution asking the cominform states to resume normal diplomatic relations with Belgrade and to submit border disputes to a mixed frontier commission. The draft resolution notes the Yugoslav charges but does not lay the blame on either side.

Rather it "views with concern the evidence of tension presented in connection with the complaint" and asks both sides to settle their differences amicably. "The relatively mild wording of our resolution," said Yugoslav Minister of State Milovan Djilas in making the presentation, "is entirely due to our pacific motives."

INCREASED PRESSURE

Increased Soviet directed pressure on his government, he asserted, "is today manifesting itself with special clarity in the ever-increasing and ever more serious character of incidents on the Yugoslav borders." He tabulated these incidents as follows: 1948, 74; 1949, 442; 1950, 937; 1951, 1,066 up to the first of this month.

During these incidents, apart from the "civilian victims of terroristic activity," he said, 14 Yugoslav border guards had been killed, 18 wounded and seven kidnaped.

The charges presented by Djilas extended from the alleged imposition by the Russians of one-sided motion picture contracts shortly after World War II to the current heavy barrage of Soviet propaganda directed against the Tito government.

In concluding, he said the government of the Soviet Union and other Eastern European countries "for more than three years have been exerting an all around and openly aggressive pressure on Yugoslavia with the aim of rendering impossible her peaceful development and destroying her national independence."

He noted that the Yogoslav White Book, brought out almost a year ago, asserted that this problem was not being brought before the UN for the time being in the hope it could be settled by direct negotiation.

NO LONGER THE CASE

This no longer was the case, Djilas said. He said Belgrade's efforts at reconciliation had been in vain and that the dispute now is so sharp, broad and prolonged that it "fundamentally threatens world peace."

Yet, he said, there was not a multiplicity of issures between Yugoslavia and her neighbors. There is but a "single problem, that of the protection of Yugoslavia's sovereign rights as an independent state," he asserted.

Bank Robber Gives Up to FBI

NEW YORK, Nov. 26—(AP)—Tired of running, Meyer Dembin, described as a notorious bank robber and one of the FBI's 10 most-wanted fugitives, surrendered to authorities Monday.

"There's been so much heat on me," Dembin was quoted as saying. "I was just tired of running away from the FBI."

The 39-year-old fugitive, sought for 16 years in connection with bank robberies across the nation, walked into the office of U. S. Attorney Myles J. Lane in the federal court house.

He was accompanied by his attorney, Robert Mitchell.

Edward Scheidt, special agent in charge of the New York FBI office, said Dembin is suspected of bank robberies in many major cities, including Detroit, Los Angeles, San Francisco and El Paso.

The FBI said the prisoner surrendered in connection with a 1935 bank holdup in Sparkill, N. Y.

A Call for a Square Deal

Candidates for office in the City of Atlanta paid $12,100 as entry fees in the September election in the city's new wards.

Members of the city Democratic Executive Committee paid themselves from $400 to $700 each from the fund although the work entailed only two small elections held in only 16 precincts. These "salaries" represented as much or more pay than the committee members have received in the past for full-fledged city elections in 38 precincts.

After payment of these salaries, there remained in the committee's coffers a sum of $2,700. Two members of the group, Glenn Dewberry, chairman, and J. Howard Monroe, assistant secretary, proposed returning this $2,700 left over to the candidates.

Such has been the practice in the past, the surplus being divided among the candidates on a percentage basis.

The Dewberry-Monroe plan evidently did not meet with the wishes of their colleagues. At a recent meeting of the committee all offices were declared vacant and in a re-election Messrs. Dewberry and Monroe were purged from their positions of responsibility.

Now the committee has set a meeting for tonight, presumably to slice the $2,700 melon. The report is that they will use it to give workers at the polls additional pay, thus rewarding partisans.

We would hate to see them do that. Such action would be sidestepping the issue and breaking with precedent. Entry fees from candidates are intended to defray election expenses. After those expenses have been met, justice demands that a candidate get a refund from what is left.

In this case it is evident that expenses have been met. Fair play requires the return to each candidate of his proportionate share of the cash left in the election fund.

It is hard already to get good men to put up their money and run for office. It will become harder if entry fees are to go into a slush fund for division among party leaders.

A Cease-Fire Line Doesn't Mean a Truce

Agreement on a 30-day cease-fire line in Korea does not mean that a truce in the war has been reached. It offers the first hope, however, that the Reds may be willing to reach agreement on other items looking toward a full armistice. It does mean that for 30 days the bloody fighting will be eased.

If no armistice agreement is reached by Dec. 28, the full-scale war will be resumed. Even an armistice will not bring solution to the dangers in the Korean situation immediately. An armistice will give the UN and Communist negotiators an opportunity to attack the bigger problems, however, and the job of actually settling the Korean War may require many months.

Should an armistice not be reached, we may expect an expansion of our war effort in Korea. There is still a possibility that the Reds are stalling for time, avoiding fighting in the bitter winter weather while building up their air strength and supplies for an all-out assault next year. General Ridgway will have anticipated this eventuality.

General Vandenberg has hinted that the Communist air buildup may make it necessary to extend the air war beyond the Yalu. This, no doubt, will involve us more deeply in the Chinese affair, possibly an all-out declared war, should the truce efforts fail.

Those who blame the UN for not already extending the air war beyond the Yalu are forgetting the reasons why MacArthur was restrained on this point. Regardless of claims by MacArthur and others, there was no certainty that such action would not explode into World War III, a possibility greatly feared by an ill-prepared West. As long as there appeared a chance for a truce, our leaders decided this to be the wiser course.

In the meantime, we have fought a costly and bloody conflict which seems futile to many. However, we are immeasurably stronger than we were a year ago. Our allies are becoming stronger every day. We have bought time to gird for the bigger war, should it come. We are much better prepared for that war now and should the truce negotiations fail, we may expect it. Should the talks fail, we may indeed be in World War III.

All wars are fought, in a measure, for political objectives. We must continue to negotiate as long as possible to attain those objectives without precipitating World War III. In the meantime, we must continue to build our forces and those of our allies to meet any onslaught. War may be inevitable. Only the Kremlin knows the answer to that. History would not forgive us, however, if we began it ourselves without exhausting every possibility of peaceful settlement.

We can hope for peace, but we must prepare for war. The costly stalemate in Korea will not be tolerated by the American people for still another year, that's for sure. Now that we are becoming strong enough to take greater risks, we do not believe that it will be. Let the Red Chinese and the Soviet Union remember that.

The Main Trouble Still the Driver

The great number of highway accidents is attributed by R. E. Lawson, of Alma, to automobile construction. He says that the modern car is wider between the rear wheels than at the front and therefore doesn't track.

There may be something in the Lawson theory, but the principal cause of wrecks remains the driver who is too thick between the ears.

Trained to Act Before Firemen Come

Should a blaze break out in the City Hospital at Columbus, nurses there know what to do until the firemen come. That is because they learn to be firefighters and rescue workers in a compulsory training course taught by members of the Columbus Fire Department.

The student nurses are instructed in every phase of fire-fighting and safety technique, both in theory and practice. They learn the use of fire extinguishers, how and when to close windows and doors to prevent the spread of smoke, gas and fire from one compartment to another. They learn how to evacuate patients from an affected fire area to a place of safety, and how to ascend and descend ladders.

The students also learn how to keep patients calm and avert panic. They are taught the proper use of the gas mask, how to recognize hazardous electrical cords and faulty electrical appliances, and how to prevent explosions of inflammable and volatile liquids. And they learn how to turn on and use a standpipe hose in battling a blaze.

State Fire Commissioner Zack Cravey has recommended the Columbus program to other cities in Georgia.

Undoubtedly of great value in hospitals, the plan could well be used, too, for training personnel in hotels, schools and similar institutions.

The Big Test Shapes For Controls Program

Philip Murray, CIO head, will challenge the government's present wage formula today when he opens contract negotiations with the United States Steel Corp. in a move affecting 1,000,000 CIO steelworkers.

Should he be successful, the entire wage-price controls formula will be endangered. It will open the way for another spiral upward of the destructive inflationary forces already at work.

Benjamin F. Fairless, head of U. S. Steel, has indicated that another increase in steel prices will follow a wage raise. This will be passed on to the defense program, to the thousand and one other items which use steel, and ultimately to the consumer—in the case of defense items, the United States Government; in any case, to all of us.

Murray

The move calls for another look at our controls program, which Bernard Baruch, one of our most able men, has termed unworkable. In fact, he has said that inflation "remains this country's number one enemy and unless halted will destroy the taxpayers."

What does a wage increase mean if it is consumed by another hike in the cost of living? What does a wage increase remedy if it adds to the continued spiral of defense costs which in turn will be reflected in higher taxes? Interest on the growing national debt already consumes about 10 cents of every tax dollar.

Any controls program which limits prices without controlling wages is unworkable, and vice versa. Inequities in the present controls law which permit any group to profit at the expense of others must be remedied.

Control of wages with prices and profits soaring is as unworkable as decontrolled wages with prices and profits under a ceiling.

All groups must co-operate in a workable controls law which is fair to everyone. Where the present law fails to protect the wage earner, it must be strengthened, not destroyed.

Profits of U. S. Steel dropped to $28,000,000 in the third quarter of this year, compared with a profit of almost $60,000,000 in the same period of 1950.

We must hold the line on controls or else face the consequences of economic disaster.

Citizen Protests City Council's Approval Of Perkerson Park Housing Project

Atlanta—I was one of approximately 250 property owners in the Perkerson Park section who attended a meeting of City Council protesting the construction of a low-cost housing project in that area in which Council decided to allow it built. It's certainly hard to beat big money interests!

Mr. Evans, Fourth Ward alderman, compared the low-cost project with an existing group of apartments that are equal to anything now existing on Peachtree St. or Piedmont Ave. It was quite entertaining to hear Mr. Marler alibi as to why he changed his mind regarding this project (he at first opposed it).

Neither Mr. Evans nor Mr. Marler mentioned the fact that the sale of the proprty for this project was tax free and all in all it was quite a dose for all these property owners, who have their hard-earned money invested in their homes, to take and particularly after the city planning board had decided against it. I was of the opinion that it was not the government's intent to construct a project of this kind in an area that would devaluate home owners' property; there are many areas in Atlanta where this project could serve a dual purpose, namely, clearing of slums and constructing decent living quarters.

Of course, Mr. Evans and Mr. Marler had nothing to lose politically by their decisions as they are Fourth Ward representatives and Perkerson Park goes in the Ninth Ward Jan. 1.

C. B. KNELLER.

Homecoming Day For Ralph McGill?

Atlanta—The McGill column is missed. On the other hand, we know that on his mission, as usual, he will do an inspiring job.

There are few men who have his ability to see, to hear and then to come to such realistic conclusions and above all put them in words that are understandable. His further gift of using his head and his heart at the same time is a rare gift.

In his case, "The pen is mightier than the sword," and the writings of Ralph McGill are a contribution that cannot be measured. But one thing is certain, he is leaving his imprint not only on the community and the state but on the nation and in a certain respect throughout the world.

Wouldn't it be nice to have a surprise homecoming for Ralph McGill, to let him know of our deep appreciation of the magnificent work that he has done and is doing? In honoring him we would be honoring ourselves.

Law, Education And Drink Problem

Vidalia—Those of us who believe that prohibition is necessary do not claim that it will settle the question alone. We, too, believe in education and law enforcement. May I quote from Mrs. D. Leigh Colvin, national president of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union?

"Realizing that education limited to the effects of alcohol alone will not solve the problem nor will rescuing the alcoholic prevent the increase in addiction, we gladly continue our efforts to change the attitude of government from that of permission through legalization and license to that of opposition through prohibitory laws.

"Law is not only the result of education but it is education.

"The attitude of a national law and its effects reach every citizen in the United States and influence the thinking of the entire population as no other system of education can possibly do, especially if law is on the other side. Law itself, however, cannot solve the drink problem but it is essential to the success of the other methods."

Churchill Called Good 'Clutch Hitter'

Atlanta — With Churchill back at the wheel in England, all the British have to do now is turn on the ignition. "Winnie" is a fair enough "clutch hitter" to do the rest himself. He's got plenty in common with Commons, even though his "stogie" smoke fogs their tea. The prime minister doesn't believe in giving up the ship . . . unless King George and Elizabeth want to use it to pay Harry a little visit.

Canine Food And Dogfaces

Korea—Attached hereto is a label from a can of beef stew which is currently being fed our canine companions here on the front lines in Korea.

This is very expensive compared to the "C" rations fed to the "dogfaces" of the Infantry, but aren't our four-legged friends giving up a lot by being over here? They left their nice warm kennels and big juicy bones back home and they even share their foxholes with us, too, barking while we shoot.

Maybe we should all go to the dogs. Long live the Canine Corps!

Public Welfare And Inflation

"I want you to write up the welfare people," said the elderly man. He was very much upset over his failure to get the local welfare worker to obtain more help for him, and he had come to the newspapers as a "last" resort. "I saw in the paper where they were giving everybody else $30 a month, and I'm not getting but $24. . . ."

The fine old fellow told how the new welfare laws had affected his monthly "pension." He was getting $25 a month until the Legislature passed a law making children help their needy parents. He told the worker his two children already were contributing $5 a month each to his support. That's $10. So they whacked $10 from his "pension," and made his assistance program $15 a month. Recently, the state increased the amount of assistance given those on the rolls. This man's assistance was raised to $24 a month.

But the papers said "the others" were getting $30 a month under the new program. What the papers actually said was that the "average" monthly assistance check was $30 a month, as compared with the previous $23 a month. The federal and state governments provide a maximum of $50 a month in financial assistance—not "pension."

"Some people who have absolutely nothing receive checks for $50 a month. Some who have a little income of their own and receive help elsewhere get as low as $1 a a month. But their assistance and other income plus their state-federal assitance checks total $50 a month.

Trying to understand this formula, the old fellow admitted that a son provided him with a house and that this probably was deducted from his state-federal assistance. Then he said something that is cause for discussion. From his own evidence, it seems this particular man probably is getting the maximum aid to which he is entitled under the present law.

"But I can't live on this amount of money," he said, sadly.

In these days of inflation, can one person live on cash and credits amounting to $50 a month? This is less than $12 a week, on an inflated market.

A Georgia aged needy person is expected to "make out" on $18 a month for food, $20 for rent, $8 for fuel for heating and cooking, $3 for medicine, $4.75 for clothing, $1 for lights and about $1 for water. Actually, he would have to do on less than that—because those figures are all based on the maximum for each item and they total $56. He would have to be shaved down on some of the items to come within the $50 maximum allowed.

State Welfare Director Alan Kemper and welfare workers say this is pretty low on a deflated dollar. However, before he would ask the Legislature to increase the monthly payments for the aged needy, Kemper says there is something else more important. The state is doing nothing for the totally disabled needy persons who are too old to be classified as "dependent children" and too young to receive "old-age assistance." They are between the ages of 18 and 65.

The next welfare legislation to be asked will be stepped-up aid for the blind. The federal government has decided to permit a blind person to earn a maximum of $50 a month without interfering with his $50 a month assistance check. Kemper says he will ask the Legislature in January to put up sufficient state funds for Georgia to take advantage of this. This will be a minor cost, however, since the blind program is relatively small.

A Rhyme a Day

"It is now estimated it would require the work and thrift of three generations to make a sizable reduction in the national debt."—Article quote.

Grandfather, in a mellow mood . . . would sometimes throw a little food . . . for thought before us that would feed . . . the mind and help us to succeed . . . and we, in turn, likewise have tried . . . to be a helper and a guide . . . a teacher and a parent to . . . our children just the same as you.

I do not know just what success . . . you've had with those who came to bless . . . your happy home, but I have found . . . it never helped me to expound . . . my theories for them to hear. . . . They said my thinking wasn't clear . . . that what I thought, in many ways . . . smacked of the horse-and-buggy days.

They do not seem to realize . . . the fundamental never dies . . . that whether you are buying hay . . . to feed the horse that pulls the shay . . . or purchase gas of high octane . . . to run a private aeroplane . . . the same old principles apply . . . today as in the days gone by.

The theory now seems to be . . . they should have everything "for free" . . . not much of work, but lots of rest . . . and when they take the journey west . . . to hope their children will forget . . . they left them ninety years in debt.

Spalding Law Has Long Reach

Bill Kendrick, acting chief law enforcer in Spalding County, is a standout among sheriffs of all counties and all times. The successor to J. D. Posey, resigned and assigned to federal prison, is seven feet tall, or by the Kendrick description—six feet, 12 inches.

So Quimby Melton Sr. comments in The Griffin Daily News, "Spalding certainly has a 'high sheriff.'"

And also a long arm of the law.

By the way, no one is shying away from the sheriff's office in Spalding just because John Posey ran afoul the federal law. There are 21 entries in the race for the post. The list includes Mrs. Posey and among other candidates—a preacher and a former prizefighter.

Democrats Move For Compromise

WASHINGTON—One of the most significant political developments in many months is the very conciliatory hands-across-the-Mason-and-Dixon-Line gesture to the South by Sen. Hubert Humphrey (Dem., Minn.) in a letter to a score of Southern newspaper editors released over the week end, dealing in a frank and friendly manner with the controversial civil rights issue. His overtures, though carefully guarded, represent a most important step in current negotiations within the Democratic Party, revealed here a few days ago, seeking a compromise on civil rights in order to pull the teeth of the revised Dixiecrat movement and, if possible, unify the party.

Senator Humphrey is a key figure in this dilemma. He has become—which he regrets—a symbol in the South because it was he who led the successful floor rebellion at the 1948 convention that upset majority recommendations of the resolutions committee for a generalized civil rights plank and, instead, substituted in the platform a down-the-line endorsement of President Truman's civil rights program, including FEPC. That inflamed Southern delegates and the South generally and was the ultimate excuse for—and the chief weapon of—the Dixiecrat independent party that wrested four states from Mr. Truman.

Because of these circumstances, it was Senator Humphrey, himself, who had to speak up to have any meaning in the South. He recognized that. That he spoke up, therefore, is of considerable weight. The most meaningful thing he said in his 3,000-word epistle to the Southerners was his invitation, in effect, to sit down and counsel with one another—as the apostle would put it—thus:

"I welcome the opportunity to work with men and women from all parts of America and from all groups for the attainment of these objectives," the objectives previously specified by him as "equal opportunity for all; the full rights of citizenship for all; full and equal protection of the law for all."

He thus opened the door, at least, to a reconsideration of the means by which these objectives might be attained. He did not withdraw from his own personal stand for the President's program. This he embodied some time ago in eight separate bills, a procedure which makes it possible, it is worth noting here, for Congress to drop or modify any one—the FEPC, for instance. He did not mention the FEPC by name, nor try to defend its compulsory nature, which is what the South complains about chiefly.

This helps to an understanding of the meaning of this portion of the senator's letter:

"I believe that the government has the responsibility to set standards or guide posts. It then becomes the responsibility for spiritual, civic and educational institutions, as well as individual leaders, to create observance and respect for these standards among the people. My program for civil rights places its main emphasis upon community activity, individual responsibility, education and moral values, supported by legislative standards. I do not believe that such a program indicates 'going too fast' or 'too far.'"

As for FEPC, Representative Hays' program provides for goals and standards and for a commission in the Labor department, advisory only, which would work with state and local agencies to try to achieve by voluntary co-operation the goals of fair employment practices without discrimination. Brooks Hays has pursued intently some way to lift civil rights out of partisan and factional politics and, as a matter of fact, Senator Humphrey expressed a similar desire when he wrote the Southern editors.

the earth to destroy all flesh wherein there is the breath of life, from under heaven, and everything . . . shall die."

Only Noah and his loved ones were to be exceptions; they should ride safely in the ark, Noah and Naamah, and their three sons, Shem, Ham, and Japheth, with their wives.

NOAH BRANDED MAD

Soon neighbors of Noah began to think the old carpenter and his folks had gone mad. For Noah promptly obeyed, even though he was a landsman with little knowledge of boats. Stores of food for a long voyage were to be loaded, and he was to drive on board two of every kind of creature, beast, bird, and creeping thing.

When Noah told the sniggering townsfolk that a flood was coming to drown the world, they held their ribs with laughter. What nonsense to say that God had told him what to do. There was no God.

Years passed, while Noah and his sons kept on tirelessly building the ark, and the people still laughed at the growing ship, and the growing zoo, enlarging week by week in a field behind Noah's house. But Noah continued until at last the long boat was finished.

Where Noah lived, there was no water; no place to lower the ship, and the people laughed more than ever. And then one night it started to rain.

For Noah the start of the storm was the signal to herd all living creatures into the ark. Soon, the high hills were submerged, and then the mountains. All flesh outside the ark was drowned.

Forty days the rain lasted. For 150 days the earth remained a shoreless ocean on which alone the ark was sailing, without steering or destination, dependent on divine guidance.

DOVE CAME BACK

In early October, the beginning of the 10th month afloat, the watching family at the window beheld the tops of mountains upthrusting from the sea. Noah released a raven, which flew about. But the raven failed to come back. Next Noah set free a dove, but it returned to the window sill. Patiently, Noah waited another seven days, and then for a second time the dove was thrown into the air. Soon it came flying back. It had found dry land and a living tree. That was a day for jubilation. To make absolutely sure, Noah sent forth the dove once more, and when, after seven days, it failed to reappear, the conclusion was irresistible—it could now live independently of the ark.

So the keeper of the ark grounded on a mountain top, and Noah opened up the roof to air and sunlight. Their strange mooring was on the top of what we know as Mount Ararat, 500 miles from Noah's home in Mesopotamia (Iraq), and near the frontier of Soviet Armenia.

Historians for a long time dismissed the Bible's circumstantial account of the ark and the flood as a myth. Like the neighbors of Noah, they laughed at a peasant called Reskett, who climbed Mt. Ararat and stumbled across the remains of an old boat. A boat on a mountain peak!

But scientists have long since begun to consider the possibility of a great flood which once drowned the world. Dr. Aaron Smith, on the basis of geological specimens, concluded that the whole Armenian range had once been covered by flood waters. Reports of a deluge, by which the race of man was swept from the earth, are to be found in the traditions of all nations, civilized or uncivilized.

But all the old tales differ in one great point from the Bible account. That is the covenant between God and man, which gives the story in the Book of Genesis a meaning important to every individual.

The covenant was given as a promise to the human race as soon as the ark's passengers were on dry land again, and Noah had set up an altar o thanksgiving. Moved to tenderness, God declared that never again woul he curse the ground, nor would he smite human beings in annihilating fashion again, although "the imagination of man's heart is evil from his youth."

God's blessing was bestowed on Noah and his three sons. They were to repopulate the earth, but this time there was a new permission. To the eating of green herbs was added the consumption of meat.

GOD SENT RAINBOW

As a sign of His promise never again to destroy the world with a flood, God set in the sky an arc of ethereal colors, the rainbow of mercy.

So now, carrying out the command of God, Noah enlisted his three sons, Shem, Japheth and Ham to share with him the responsibility as founder of a new human race—but at this point the old builder made a curious restriction. Ham, his youngest son, was bluntly told that he and all his descendants were to be "the servant of servants" to his older brothers and to their generations.

It was a rebuke, a penalty imposed upon Ham by his father for an offense committed in the days before the flood. Once Ham had to come to his brothers, Shem and Japheth, and told them how he had beheld his old father naked as he lay on his bed, overcome with wine. The patriarch Noah had never forgotten that shame. He blessed his more respectful older sons because they had promptly hurried to his couch and covered his nakedness when told of it by Ham—all with averted eyes.

Now Ham must stand back, while Shem, the eldest, was chosen to be the forefather of one ethnic group, which would become the Hebrews, the Shemites. The middle brother, Japheth, was to be the progenitor of another race which would become the goyim, or Gentiles. Ham was to be the seed of the peoples of Canaan, except for the Israelites, who were destined to conquer all the others, and father also of the dark peoples of Africa. Egypt was to be known as the "Land of Ham."

So the family that had shared the incredible experience of the flood and the ark now journeyed from the East until they came to dwell in the land of Shinar, later called Mesopotamia. (1951).

Why you should learn to forget

Know why resenting wrongs and the ache for revenge are poison?

"What most of us need is not so much a good memory as a good forgettery," says W. E. Sangster in December Reader's Digest.

If you think you can't forget unpleasant or tragic incidents, read his helpful article. Here is why you work with nature instead of against her when you learn to forget . . . and how you can free your mind of things you're better off not remembering.

BEFORE YOU SIGN . . .

There are many pitfalls in the sale and purchase of real estate. The person selling the property may not have a clear title. For instance, there may be prior liens that have not been satisfied, taxes that have not been paid, a sale by an administrator that did not meet the legal requirements, a sale by an executor that was not made within the terms of the will, easements that might prevent full use of the property and many others.

Such a purchase usually involves large sums of money. Quite often it represents savings for the express purpose of buying a home which is to last the rest of your life. At any rate, the sum of money involved in a transfer of real estate is always too large to take chances with.

For that reason the seller or purchaser of real estate needs the service of a qualified lawyer before any sales contract is signed. The lawyer you employ is experienced in preparing instruments of property-transfer which clearly define the wishes of the individuals concerned. He will first of all see that legal title vests with the seller and that the property to be sold is what the purchaser understands it to be. He will discover if there are any easements against the property to prevent the purchaser's full and complete enjoyment of the property, and he will assure that his client, whether seller or buyer, is protected as to the terms of the sale.

Titles should always be examined in every transfer of real estate. Most titles stem from grants dating back to the time of the founding of our state. During the intervening years there have been many transfers of deeds to property and in many instances there is much confusion as to the true owner. Even though a title examination has been made for a prior purchaser, this does not afford protection for the buyer or a lender.

A qualified title lawyer is prepared to furnish purchaser with a proper certificate of title and in addition is prepared to secure title insurance based on his examination.

Always employ the services of a qualified lawyer whenever you make a real estate transaction, before signing the contract of sale. A relatively small legal expense may save you from serious financial loss and litigation.

Lanza Sings Aria Over Telephone To Stricken Girl

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 26—(U.P.) Mario Lanza, operatic tenor of the movies, sang his heart out Monday night to an audience of one.

He sang by telephone from Hollywood to a bedfast 10-year-old girl to tell her he loved her and to wish her a Merry Christmas, which she celebrated Monday because incurable Hodgkins disease may end her life before the real Yuletide.

For 11 minutes little Raphaela Fasano, whom Lanza calls "Ray," sat with dark eyes shining as her favorite movie star talked to her and sang the choral "Silent Night." At the end his voice nearly broke with emotion.

"I didn't know if I was going to make it or not," Lanza said later in Hollywood. "I could just see that little girl there and I looked down and saw my own little girls and it was almost too much for me."

COUNTY

which the board passed directing Fuller and McDonald to submit costs of operating two camps, the minimum Hailey stated was necessary to keep the county "geared to take advantage of any possible state road aid."

Fuller and McDonald said "drastic steps," including abolition or transfer of 250 public works employees to the city, were required because county public road anticipated revenue for 1952 was $1,000,000 and the 1951 budget amounted to $2,500,000.

Adopting a move made by Commissioner James Aldredge, the commission instructed Fuller to send ballot letters to approximately 1,800 residents of Sandy Springs and other outlying areas to determine if they desire the commission to contract with the City of Atlanta for garbage collection services after Jan. 1.

Atlanta had offerd to contract the services on the same rates—approximately $14 to $18 annually for residences now charged by the county, with rates to be adjusted on an actual cost basis after six months.

Meanwhile, the commission agreed to turn over garbage trucks immediately to the city, two at a time, for repainting and lettering by the city which will provide substitute vehicles for the county.

Chairman Tom Camp appointed Hailey to meet with Fuller, county engineers and representatives of the A&WP. and Central of Georgia railroads to discuss financing of an underpass to carry west by-pass traffic under railroad property at Whitehall and Peters streets.

Commissioner R. L. Doyal was delegated to meet with city officials to discuss a $100,000 county contribution to the joint paving program. Hailey and Doyal are to report at another special meeting Monday.

A native of New York, she has spent most of her life in Alexandria, Ind., and Dayton, Ohio.

She began her newspaper career on the Dayton Daily News. During her stay there, she served as society reporter, feature writer, radio editor and assistant woman's editor. She also assisted with newspaper makeup.

Miss McCarty attended the Dayton extension of Wittenberg College, Springfield, Ohio.

As society reporter for the Washington-Times Herald, she covered many spot news events, including the press reception for Princess Elizabeth. She enjoyed the Washington society whirl "because many of the best news tips there are obtained at parties."

Miss McCarty herself is interested in "just about everything." Her activities range from bicycling as a hobby to reading biographies. She says she learned to cook "on a stove—not a typewriter." And she has learned to be "as much interested in men's fashions as in women's." Although she was on her junior high school softball team, she frankly admits she now enjoys sports mostly as a spectator.

Caudle Viewed in Role Of 'Persecuted Pilgrim'

and addressed his remarks half to the subcommittee and half to the spectators.

Such phrases as "Lord God almighty" and "Lord have mercy," uttered in tones of almost abject resignation, crept into the testimony given in a Southern accent, pronounced even for Caudle's native North Carolina.

In other testimony, elicited under direct examination by Adrian W. Dewind, subcommittee counsel, the witness stated:

"VERY MALICIOUS"

1. That in instituting an investigation of rackets that were "being allowed to run" in Charlotte, he included Police Chief Frank Littlejohn among those against whom he initiated tax fraud inquiries.

2. That Littlejohn is "a very malicious man" who said scandalous things about me." Caudle said the police chief's hatred and constant efforts to embarrass him were transmitted to two federal agents, so that they, too, were against him.

Littlejohn branded Caudle's testimony as "a melodramatic somersault" designed to divert attention from the real issue. "Mr. Caudle is in the throes of a dilemma that confronts all evildoers who get caught, Littlejohn declared. "In suddenly assuming the role of a persecuted pilgrim, he is apparently attempting to cover his shame with piety."

DISQUALIFIED SELF

3. That he had disqualified himself from any part in handling any tax action that might be brought against Keith M. Beaty of Charlotte, taxicab fleet owner who had helped him buy automobiles in 1947 and 1948 at a dealer's discount. He pictured Beaty, under investigation by the Office of Price Administration before his tax difficulties, as being also a victim of Littlejohn's animosity.

Caudle said that the first thing he did in 1947 when he was put in charge of tax prosecutions in the justice department was to call Charles Oliphant, counsel of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, to "wholly and fully disqualify myself" in the beauty tax matter.

The witness hotly denied a suggestion by Dewind that, in talking to Oliphant later about the Beaty tax case, people might think he sought to influence internal revenue action by saying that the matter was "an attempt to get at me."

LEARNED ON TRIP

He first learned of his friend's tax difficulties, he said, when they were on a trip to New York. He said he advised Beaty to cooperate in every way with the Bureau of Internal Revenue. Questioned as to who paid his way on the trip, Caudle said he was "almost certain," he paid his own way, but not absolutely so.

Earlier, when Caudle was U. S. attorney at Charlotte, he was asked by Littlejohn, then head of detectives, and an agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, identified only as Freeman, to call in the FBI to investigate theft of some OPA ration stamps from the commercial bank in that city.

Beaty was involved in this case—Caudle never did explain how—and, when this request was made, he said that, after checking, he found that the FBI did not have jurisdiction. Instead, because he wanted to "get at the truth," Caudle said he had his brother, Charles, then an OPA enforcement officer investigate.

TESTIMONIAL

Under questioning, he said that, while the investigation still was in progress, he wrote a letter certifying to Beaty's good reputation when his friend was trying to get a beer distributor's franchise.

Much of Caudle's testimony dealt with his automobile transactions. He said that Beaty, a friend of 25 years' standing, not only helped him buy two automobiles at discount rates but also loaned him a car for four or five months after he had come to Washington.

He admitted he still owed Beaty $285—the difference between the discount price on a new 1947 model and what his 1942 car had brought at auction—because Beaty never would accept payment. Beaty claimed, he insisted, that he never would take payment because of the embarrassment the OPA case caused at the time he was appointed assistant attorney general.

It's Strictly Slander When Aimed at Judge

MUNICH, Germany, Nov. 26—(AP)—Lawyer Karl Meindl lost a slander suit when the court ruled that his client had not been slandered by being called "super-idiot."

So Meindl wrote the court:

"Does the herr judge hold it to be meaningless if I, on the basis of his decision, call him a super-idiot?"

Answer: Three months in jail and 300 marks fine for "contempt of court."

Meindl said he would appeal sentence.

ing full informational authority among NATO nations "we could have peace by tomorrow." He pointed out that the Allied countries were exposing their most intimate secrets to the Harriman group and thereby demonstrating the freedom and unity of the democratic coalition. He remarked that it was wonderful that such a committee could be empowered to go so deeply into the military, economic and military roots of each member power.

2. Monday morning after Eisenhower had conferred with the military committee, that body of staff chiefs met with the defense ministers. The latter group agreed to accept the committee's report—possibly the main document of the current session—which provides for increased pledges by the Allies in terms of 1954 commitments to the over-all defense contribution. From now on it is up to the defense and foreign ministers to debate targets fixed before the governments themselves line up behind these goals.

TOP SECRET REPORT

3. Eisenhower's chief of staff, Lt. Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, gave a fairly detailed and top secret report on the capabilities of the Western Allies vis a vis the powerful existing resources of the Soviet bloc. He emphasized the necessity of not relaxing at this moment but the need instead of increasing available forces. Both Eisenhower and Gruenther observed that while new scientific discoveries including atomic and guided missiles could produce weapons simplifyin the defensive task, it would be impossible to count on reducing their commitments because of this expectation.

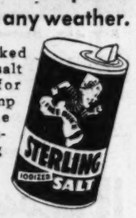

4. Eisenhower at considerable length underscored the necessity of complete unity of the Western European community more or less along lines he stressed in his speech in London last July 3. He heartily endorsed the project for a European defense force in a European community and emphasized that this would help the process of realizing the goal of true continual unity—which he sees as an ultimate necessity both economically and politically. He said something final must be agreed upon on the Schuman plan—for pooling Western Europe's coal and steel resources—and European defense forces.

His statement in favor of a European defense force was exceptionally strong. He pointed out that the European community could have no security of mind without some form of unity. He said that the continent's defense would be a "stalemate" were it not to be established on the Rhine. However, he said nothing specific about shifting such concepts eastward to the Elbe.

Skeptical?

How'll you feel when you're Bald—and realize you need not have been?

BALDNESS is a big price to pay for your skepticism!

But you may have to pay that price if you fail to seek professional help when your hair starts coming out.

A man who almost lost his hair is shown above. His name is L. M. McGovern, and he's an aircraft worker in San Antonio. Last spring he started losing hair fast. For months he waited for his hair to stop falling and start growing . . . consoling himself meantime with the old notion that "if you're going to be bald, you're going to be bald."

So Mr. McGovern's scalp was quite threadbare when finally he came to the Mueller clinic. (See photograph at left above.)

Four months later his "hair factories" were back in full production. (See right photograph.)

His particular disorder was alopecia areata, not an uncommon disease. But plain dandruff—and a lot of other everyday scalp disorders—can be just as disastrous.

"Better be safe than sorry!"

Bring your skepticism along with you to the Mueller clinic. Our experience has been that many skeptics come to our clinic but not many leave in the same frame of mind.

Look at it from this angle:

How will you feel five years from now if you're bald—then find out you need not have been?

So come to the Mueller clinic for a free examination and introductory treatment. You won't be obligated in any way—not even to abandon your skepticism.

Teacher Told State Fund Can Pay Him 10 for One

A retired Georgia Tech professor, who questioned the financial integrity of the Georgia Teacher Retirement Fund, is eligible to receive 10 times as much as he put into the fund, State Auditor B. E. Thrasher Jr. declared Monday.

Thrasher, a trustee and auditor of the fund, hit back at the criticism with a statement that the fund is in excellent shape. Cash assets as of June 30, 1951, totalled $25,857,292.08. The funds are invested in government bonds or first mortgage securities, he added.

Rip Black, retired civil engineering teacher, writing a letter to The Constitution Monday, asked if the funds had been depleted; if they had been used to buy Jekyll Island, and whether he could get his money back.

Thrasher said Black contributed $1,039.50 into the fund between Jan. 1, 1945, and June 30, 1951, when he retired. Black is eligible to receive from the fund a total of $10,635.33, at the rate of $118.20 per month, the auditor said. However, if he prefers to withdraw his own contributions of $1,039.50—without the state funds—he can do so. Thrasher said Black will make 1,000 per cent profit by leaving the fund alone.

While there had been some discussion of investing Teacher Retirement Funds in Jekyll Island, this was not done.

Black asked if the Teacher Retirement Fund had more employes than it does teachers on retirement. Thrasher said the system has 16 paid employes to process the accounts of 26,000 teachers now contributing to the fund. There are 1,240 teachers drawing retirement benefits.

Atlanta Co-ed Wins College Rifle Honors

Carole Hale of Atlanta, blonde, blue-eyed and 19 years old, is believed to be the first woman in America to be on a college ROTC rifle team!

The Atlanta "Annie Oakley" is a second-quarter freshman at the University of Georgia. She joined the newly established woman's air ROTC because of her interest in flying.

Maj. J. W. Boddie, Air Force ROTC rifle team coach, says Carole is "an exceptionally good shot."

She became interested in shooting at the age of 11. Since that time her interest in the sport has increased steadily. She lists hunting deer and birds among her favorite pastimes.

The young markswoman is majoring in aeronautical administration and plans to teach school or join the service upon graduation from the University.

"Miss Hale was a good markswoman to start with," Maj. Boddie said, "and she has shown remarkable improvement. She seems well on her way to winning a letter."

Christian Leaders Chart Fight on Liquor Traffic

Christian leaders from all over Georgia will attend a meeting to discuss ways and means of fighting the "liquor traffic" in the state at 10:30 a. m. Tuesday at the Biltmore Hotel.

The meeting was called by Bishop Arthur J. Moore, president of the Council of Bishops of the Methodist Church; Dr. Louie D. Newton, president of the Georgia Baptist Convention; Dr. J. R. McCain, moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, U. S.; and W. H. Pittman of Macon, president of the Georgia Temperance League.

Bishop Moore, Dr. Newton and Dr. McCain called a similar meeting in 1943. That meeting led to the organization of the Georgia Temperance League and the employment of the Rev. Norman M. Lovein as executive secretary.

The Rev. Mr. Lovein said the meeting Tuesday would include a report of progress by the Georgia Temperance League and a discussion of strategy for continuing the fight against the liquor traffic in Georgia. The meeting will continue through lunch until 2:30 p. m.

Ralph M'Gill, Paul Patten Reach India

Constitution Editor Ralph McGill and Carroll county farmer Paul Patten, who arrived in New Delhi, India, Monday, missed their usual Thanksgiving celebration.

The two Georgians, on their way to visit an Indian farmer, were in Rome, Italy, Thursday, and McGill wrote that "there is no celebration of Thanksgiving Day."

The pair flew first to the Azores, then to Lisbon, Barcelona, Nice and Rome. From Rome they went to Istanbul, Turkey, to Karachi and on to New Delhi.

"Eight of us had coffee and pie at Barcelona and the bill was only $1.10," McGill wrote, "Spanish prices are cheap."

The Constitution editor and the Georgia farmer plan to spend five weeks at the home of Amar Singh, the farmer in Uttar Pradesh who recently visited Patten's farm in Carroll county. McGill and Patten were traveling with Luther Evans, U. S. congressional librarian, and Horace Holmes, director of the U. S. Point Four aid program in India.

All we ask is
Test it 2 ways

1. Road Test a Mercury for Proof of Performance

We ask little of you. We ask you first to get into a Mercury and to drive it.

True, we can tell you here of a Mercury's performance. We can tell you of its surge of V-type 8 power; smooth, responsive, whisper-quiet. We can describe the sweetness of its handling, its roadability, its beautiful balance. We can try to explain all this by detailing its new-type springing, wide-view visibility, supersafety brakes, famous high-compression prize-winning engine.

We can put the words together until we run out of space and it won't tell you half as much as just a few minutes behind the wheel. We ask you to sit there soon. Then—we ask you to try it on your budget. We believe you'll join the big move to Mercury—in a big hurry!

Standard equipment, accessories, and trim illustrated are subject to change without notice.

3-WAY CHOICE INCLUDING MERC-O-MATIC DRIVE! For "the drive of your life!" Mercury offers a triple choice in dependable, owner-proved transmissions. Merc-O-Matic Drive, the new simpler, smoother, more efficient automatic transmission—or thrifty Touch-O-Matic Overdrive are optional at extra cost. There's also silent-ease standard transmission.

2. Budget Test a Mercury for Proof of Value

Does it have a down-to-earth first price? Mercury's price tag is one you can understand—a big dollar's worth for every dollar invested.

Will you be sure of good gasoline mileage? Mercury has proved its more-miles-per-gallon by winning officially sponsored economy tests.

Is it famous for long life? It is indeed! 92% of all Mercurys ever built for use in the U.S. are still on the road, according to the latest official annual registration figures.

Will upkeep stay low? You save money year after year. Mercury's famous stamina keeps repair bills at a rock-bottom low.

Will trade-in value stay high? Mercurys keep their value; used car market reports consistently prove it.

Does it represent solid value? Mercury owners say YES! So will you when you get the rest of the story. Drop in today and see.

McArthur and Miller radioed "throttle back and level out." Instinctly Paladino complied. The other two jet pilots then eased their planes into position with one of their wingtips under Paladino's wingtips. By gently jockeying they kept his plane straight and level. As the plane lost altitude, Paladino regained consciousness and landed safely.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 26—A heavy manhole cover wrecked the top of this automobile. The cover, blown high into the air by pressure from gas formed in an underground electrical cable fire, came down on the car top. The explosion rocked part of the downtown district of the city. Pete Zucchero, owner of the automobile, was away from the parked vehicle. No one was in the car at the time of the accident.

Steel Grant For Schools Cheers Collins

The allocation of more steel for school construction by the Defense Production Administration Monday was called "good news for Georgia" by state school supt. M. D. Collins.

Collins said the increase in allocations "should clear up materially" the "state of uncertainty in such counties as Polk, Glenn, Richmond, Cobb, Muscogee and Daugherty" where school projects have been slowed.

Dr. Collins pointed out that most of these constructions would receive priorities because they are located in critical defense areas.

Meanwhile he pointed out that Georgia's multi - million dollar public school building program would not go into effect until action was taken by the State Supreme Court on a case testing the constitutionality of the building authority law. However, the action by the DPA, Collins said, "will open the door" for future allocations on which the building program could depend.

CONTROLS

called the amendment the "terrible Capehart amendment" and DiSalle Monday said the higher ceiling prices which the amendment makes necessary "will be harmful to the economy."

DiSalle's observation brought Senator Capehart into a sharp exchange with the price director. Senator Capehart said DiSalle had sat around for four months and done nothing about applying the Capehart price and profit formula to ceiling prices.

"In my opinion you have violated the spirit of the law," Senator Capehart added.

DiSalle denied his office had been inactive but added that "Congress sat around for three months or more debating the Capehart amendment before it took any action."

In discussing revised allocations of steel, Fleischmann told the committee he was extremely sensitive to criticism that his agency had been unreasonably stringent in the treatment of school allocations.

With its additional grant of 15,000 tons of steel the Federal Security Agency, which is the claimant agency for materials for schools and hospitals, can authorize the building of a total of 500 new schools, in the first quarter of 1952 instead of the 300 originally planned, and it can support the continuation of approximately 1,400 projects already under way, Mr. Fleischmann said.

A supplemental allotment of 7,500 tons of carbon steel and 150,000 pounds of wire mill products for hospitals, the witness added, will support all the projects already under way in the first quarter of 1952, provide for approximately 50 new projects needed in defense areas and permit further repairs to a renovation of existing facilities.

The Defense Production Administration is working on an increase in the allocation of steel for highway construction, which, Fleischmann said, will be aimed at permitting the 1952 program of the Bureau of Public Roads to match the level of 1949.

SEN. TAFT

and from Senator Taft that "in the campaign of his opponent, scurrilous and defamatory campaign literature had been employed."

The object of the hearings, Senator Gillette said, was to develop facts that would be helpful to the subcommittee in its study of possible "amendatory and remedial legislation."

Ferguson, who will be the witness Tuesday, was present throughout most of the hearing.

TRUMAN'S CHARGE

President Truman said in a speech last week to the National Democratic Women's Club here, that "special interests poured money into Ohio last year" and forecast a similar pattern for the 1952 Presidential campaign by remarking that "now they will be thinking that if money can win an election in Ohio maybe money can win a national election."

Much of his statement dealt with campaign literature put out by or on behalf of labor organizations which he said poured money into Ohio to defeat him.

Labor organizations which were the chief target of Taft's charges were the AFL, the CIO, the Political Action Committee, the Railroad Brotherhoods, the United Mine Workers and the Machinists Union. To these foes he added "the Democratic organization in Ohio and the national administration in Washington."

The senator asserted some of the literature used against him violated the law because it was published anonymously. One bit of evidence he introduced especially interested Senator Gillette and other members of the subcommittee and probably will be the subject of further inquiry.

LETTER SUBMITTED

Without disclosing the name of the author, Senator Taft placed in the record a letter written by the husband of a woman who was a member of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America and employed in the Lorain, Ohio, branch of the S. Weitz Co., a Cleveland firm.

The letter related that this woman had been asked to donate to the PAC but had refused. Nonetheless, a pay check she received on April 14, 1950, deducted $1 from her pay as a donation to the PAC fund. The stub of the paycheck was enclosed.

The law prohibits involuntary assessments for political activity. Taft expressed hope the subcommittee would ask B. Peppercorn, manager of the Cleveland joint board of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, "to explain this extraordinary procedure." Peppercorn is to be a witness later and the committee indicated it would take Senator Taft's advice.

No precise figures dealing with expenditures in his own campaign or that of his opponent were presented by Taft.

Senator Taft offered five suggestions to improve corrupt practices laws.

A. Enforce the laws impartially and permit either candidate to invoke the law by direct action if the attorney general, after notice, refuses to do so.

B. I think it might be possible to require the filing of all literature dealing with the election of national officers with some official in Washington before such literature is circulated.

C. With some hesitation I suggest that you investigate the possibility of a law punishing direct misstatements of fact in a campaign. There might perhaps be a penalty payable in a civil suit to the injured party.

D. I think undoubtedly the laws relating to money contributions should be definitely clarified. If possible, there should be included time spent by employees. Thus in the recent election, not only federal officials but paid union officers devoted much of their time to this campaign at considerable expense to somebody.

E. If there are to be effective limitations on the amount of money to be spent, the laws will have to be much clearer than they are today. It is almost impossible to prevent evasion, but a very carefully written law might accomplish something in that direction.

of carrying out disarmament unless the Soviet Union gave its consent. The same view was expressed Monday afternoon by several other small power delegates.

Rau, who was one of the first speakers Monday morning, in fact suggested the creation of a subcommittee to try to work out a disarmament plan that would be acceptable to both the Soviet Union and the Western powers and said he would submit a resolution to this effect if there were general approval.

He introduced a resolution—the same as one he introduced in 1950—providing for the creation of a United Nations fund for reconstruction and development, to be financed by contributions from members out of the savings they would effect from disarmament and recommending that each member notify Secretary General Trygve Lie by March 31, 1952, how much they were planning to reduce their armaments and how much they were willing to contribute.

The Arab - Asiatic resolution, after "noting" the universal desire for peace, disarmament and the abolition of atomic weapons, and the "divergence of views" between the Western and Soviet proposals, declared that no agreement was possible "without the fullest cooperation and support" of the Big Four.

The resolution provides for a suspension of committee debate on the Western disarmament proposal and the companion item calling for a merger of the atomic energy and conventional armament commissions until the conferees report—for which no date is fixed.

U. S. circles earlier Monday had indicated that the United States would not agree to the Arab-Asiatic resolution and it is understood the decision to accept it in principle resulted from telephone calls during the luncheon recess to Rome where Secretary of State Acheson is attending the meeting of the North Atlantic council and to Washington.

One delegate cynically commented that adoption of the resolution would "at least make the Arabs happy" and, with the exceptionof its sponsors and perhaps a few other Arab or Asiatic countries, no delegate has the slightest hope that the Western Big Three would agree to the Soviet proposal or vice versa.

initialed two Communist maps showing the location of the buffer line. Two UN maps of the line were initialed yesterday.

A change in the United Nations' armistice team was announced Monday R. Adm. R. E. Libby, commander of Cruiser Division Three in Korean waters, was named to replace R. Adm. Arleigh Burke. The retiring delegation member will go to a new assignment in Washington.

Staff officers of both sides cracked the four-month-old ceasefire deadlock Monday night when they reached agreement on the final areas in dispute along the snowy 145-mile fighting front. The front was inked-in on two 14-foot maps.

The line agreement Monday night and the ratification Tuesday will not end the fighting. By agreement, hostilities continue until the three remaining armistice issues—each pregnant with controversy—are decided.

The first of these issues probably will be brought up at the plenary session of the truce delegations Tuesday — the important question of supervising the truce.

Once this is decided, the two sides must also agree on exchange of prisoners and recommendations to governments concerned on ultimate withdrawal of foreign troops from Korea.

It was possible that in order to speed this work, separate subcommittee would consider simultaneously the supervision and prisoner exchange issues and report back to the full delegations. There were hints from both sides that such a speed-up system would be acceptable.

Whether all this could be accomplished by Christmas, no one at UN command advance headquarters would say at this time.

It took 58 meetings—from July 27 to Nov. 26—to bring the truce makers this far along the road to an eventual armistice. The cost included 17,000 U. S. casualties alone since July. Other Allied casualties were not available but those of the Chinese and North Koreans killed, wounded or captured were estimated by the U. S. Defense department at 254,538 between July 13 and Nov. 16.

Fight Industry Fights Back

I cannot speak as the voice of the people, but for myself I can say that I am aware of new interest and intrigue in the heavyweight prizefighting industry.

It has occurred over football's lively body this Autumn, an unusual season for boxing to expose its collection of scar tissue and underworld characters for public approval. But with firm aggressiveness, the oldest athletic art known to man has edged forward and taken advantage of spurious attacks on intercollegiate exercise.

Suddenly the field in which the tank job and the shifty-eyed guy were once the mark of the trade has developed a strain of utter purity. Jersey Joe Walcott, the All-American father, churchman and a prayerful, humble soul of the old school of Negroes, defeated Ezzard Charles. Rocky Marciano, the son of an Italian shoemaker, born and reared in Massachusetts poverty, defeated Joe Louis.

BISHER

It passed in the night of a feverish football week end and national concern about Mrs. Caudle's mink coat, but when Clarence Henry numbed Bob Baker last Friday, this was another healthy stride in the new movement. The import of this event will not bowl you over, I feel sure, for yea, no more than 3,515 out of New York's eight millions were inclined to pay at the Madison Square Garden gate. And I feel equally sure that all the others were not saving up to see Yale play Harvard, or Fordham tinker with NYU.

But, this Henry-Baker business brought into keener focus an interesting pair of heavyweight fighters that are something more than toothless old animals who can no more than gum one another around the square. Fact is, there's almost a heavyweight traffic jam now where a year ago you could have stirred up a better match by picking on your next door neighbor.

Baker Lost His Ambition Early

Baker and Henry are both young and ambitious. But Friday night Henry's ambition was more obvious. Baker has been winning the Eastern play, but Henry won the match. This seriously damaged a bubble inflated by New York agents who had elected Baker to clean out the heavyweight house within the course of a few seasons.

Through the courtesy of a razor blade maker, Henry was allowed the courtesy of demonstrating to television watchers that Baker wasn't yet ready to be taken out of the oven. Around our set the fellows were confidently waiting for Baker and his clippings to floor the California Negro. He started after Henry as if propelled by a furious desire to get a full night's sleep, but his hurry cost him seriously, if not fatally.

Henry met him more than halfway. He picked up the challenge and threw it back and then threw himself after it. Baker is a giant of a fellow, about 6-2 and 210. He had some 25 pounds and an obvious reach on Henry, who chased the big fellow around the ring like a terrier nipping at the heels of a St. Bernard.

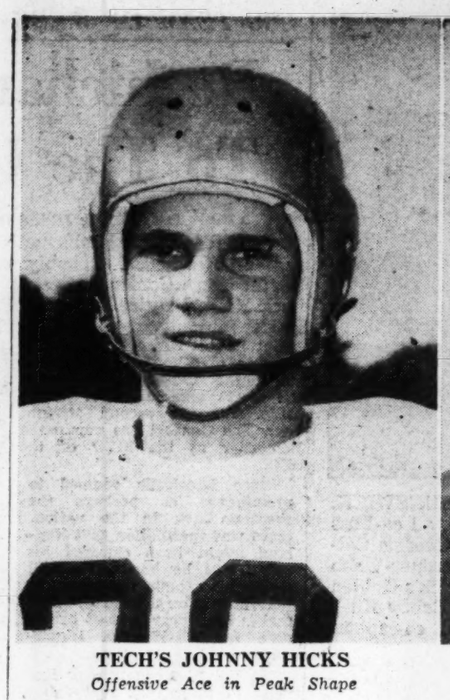

Baker appeared to lose considerable interest in the fight after Henry had stung him in that first-round reprisal. Henry himself lagged at times, and only in the third and eighth rounds did he call on his advantage of agility and speed, and when he went to work on the bovine Baker the last time, he got him down and out for the count with what was a first-class professional knockout. It ended with Baker wrapped up in the ropes and Henry's trainer carrying him around in the ring like the Statue of Liberty carries her torch.

Henry Gets Moore, Not Rocky

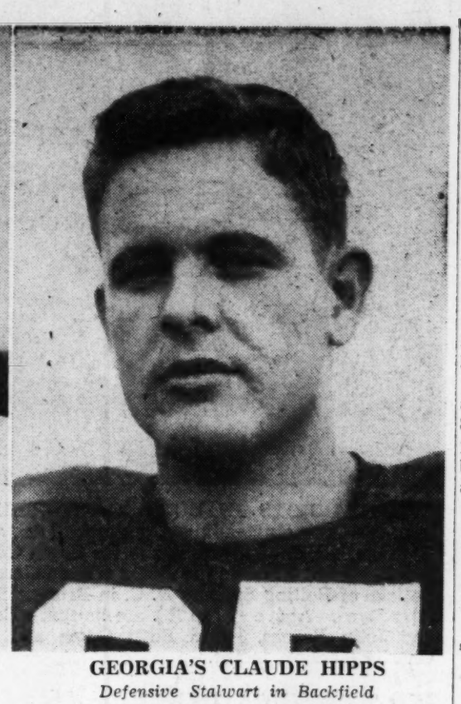

If Henry couldn't fight a lick, he'd have won himself a number of voters in this battle. The fight gave off in advance the essence of a setup job for one chosen for the throne. Baker had the proper breeding for the IBC blessing.

He comes from Pittsburgh. He was a heavyweight Golden Gloves champion in New York two years ago. He came from the stable of Chris Dundee, who has a habit of doing business only in champions. Dundee bought his contract from a Pittsburgh merchant for $3,500 after Baker had leveled every heavyweight he could throw at him.

Henry comes from the West Coast, Los Angeles. He had won 27 out of 31 fights, his biggest riffle a victory over Bob Murphy. Even yet, though, it seems Jim Norris and IBC are not impressed. After he'd finished laying out Baker and assuming his No. 4. rank in the heavyweight ladder, Henry was offered nothing better than a match with Archie Moore, one of the "fringe" heavies. Henry had his mind set on Marciano.

If the Dice Roll Seven Again, Tech Will Bounce Georgia, 14-7

In Dodd's Seventh Year, Jackets Hold Eight Foes to Seven, Favored by Seven

By BILL McGROTHA

'Case you are interested, Georgia Tech will defeat Georgia Saturday afternoon at Grant Field, 14-7.

Anyhow, that is what you get figuring a long string of sevens that have twined around Tech's undefeated destiny this season.

It is thisaway: Eight of 10 foes have scored seven points against the Yellow Jackets, no more, no less. The number has appeared in every score, save one—the lone blot, 14-14, with Duke—and that one pairs multiples of seven. Tech has averaged yielding exactly seven points per opponent, 70 for the season—there you got the seven for Georgia. The shy boys favor Tech by seven. Hence: 14-7

And, oh yeah, this is Bobby Dodd's seventh season as head coach!

Look! Tech 21, SMU 7; Tech 27, Florida 0; Tech 13, Kentucky 7; Tech 25, LSU 7; Tech 27, Auburn 7; Tech 8, Vanderbilt 7; Tech 14, Duke 14; Tech 34, VMI 7; Tech 27, Alabama 7; Tech 34, Davidson 7.

So, if you wanta go on out and buck that mob Saturday, don't say we didn't tell you what it was going to be like. On the other hand, seven help us if it ain't.

One thing, surer than the score—for a change—is that Darrell Crawford will start at quarterback for the Techs. That is, barring a favorable catastrophe for the Jackets. Crawford has a rep of doing his best with a small catastrophe hanging around his neck. Fact is, folks can hardly visualize a well Crawford better than an ailing one. He performed nobly against Alabama and Vandy when ailments forecast little or no play. He did not appear against Davidson last week, resting up for the big one.

So, really, it is news that he definitely will start. In apparent good health, Crawford now has some Jacket backers hoping for a mild disaster, on the order of the injured thumb and side, so he can really cut loose.

But, back to bread and butter: Monday afternoon the Techsters whipped through a light, sweatclothes workout behind gates locked. It was not a long session.

"We intend to play the same type game, with the same boys," Dodd backed up an earlier statement. "After all, that's been good enough for us so far."

Then, he twinkled: "Course, we may vary our defense, and maybe our defense a little bit to suit Georgia specifications."

Dood acknowledged respect for Bulldog Zeke Bratkowski, mapping out much pass defense toil this week. The Georgia star follows a long line of astute aerialists that Tech has met and mastered — SMU's Fred Benners, Florida's Haywood Sullivan, Kentucky's Vito Parilli, Vanderbilt's Bill Wade.

Tech probably will take no chance of over-doing the drills. Stiffer toil was marked down for Tuesday and Wednesday, but no heavy scrimmages.

No lineup changes were anticipated.

It appears that Johnny Hicks, running at both halfback positions, may be an extremely able man come Saturday. Hicks, who has a 4.8 yardage average on 46 jaunts, is in his best playing condition since early in the campaign.

Georgia Maloof may see more duty than normal at fullback, with Hicks bidding hard at halfback. Maloof owns 373 yards rushing, 4.3 per on 86 excursions.

But Leon Hardeman, of whom Georgia's Wally Butts professes most profound respect, leads the rushing pack this week following a good day against Davidson. Hardeman owns a 4.7 average, 429 yards on 91 carries.

Butts Praises 16 Georgia Seniors; Players Pledge Win Over Tech

By BILL COULTER
Special to The Atlanta Constitution

ATHENS, Nov. 26—Wallace Butts paid tribute Monday to 16 Georgia seniors who have pledged to end their college football careers with a victory over hitherto undefeated Georgia Tech at Grant Field Saturday afternoon.

"It takes a lot of character for a boy to stick out college football four years," Butts drawled sentimentally before his Bulldogs went out for practice Monday afternoon.

"We lost 16 seniors by graduation last year and now it's 16 this year, too. Ten's about the average number graduating at most schools."

The Bulldogs' head man had a compliment for each of his 16 seniors.

"Hipps (Waycross, business administration)—Georgia never had a finer leader—truly deserved the recent honor voted him by coaches of the conference: Best defensive halfback in the league."

"Alternate captain Marion Campbell (Chester, S. C., physical education)—Might have been the best defensive tackle in college football but for his leg injury—not far from it, anyway."

"Harrison—Bad shoulder handicapped him throughout his career here—he had the speed to make a dangerous pass-receiver."

"Ed Filipovits (Northampton, Pa., physical education)—One of the best blocking ends we have had at Georgia—with more speed he would have been a great pass-receiver, too."

"Dick Yelvington (Daytona Beach, Fla., education)—He weighed only 180 pounds when he came to Georgia as a freshman in summer of 1946. A good blocker, he is one of the few boys we ever had who was a regular for three straight years."

"Richard Steele (Atlanta, physical education)—Just as he was developing into a fine tackle last season a knee injury ruined his career. He might have been a great lineman."

"Jeff Burgamy (Albany, industrial arts)—A knee injury slowed Jeff all this season but he was outstanding on defense against Auburn two weeks ago. He is a good lineman."

"Ed Greenway (Athens, industrial arts) like Yelvington, Ed has been a regular for us three years: defense in 1949, offense in 1950 and early this year. Now he's back on defense and playing the best ball of his career."

"Clint Madray (Jessup, physical education)—Clint was playing the best ball of his career early this season and really helping us at defensive guard but a knee injury slowed him."

Rocco Principe (Chicago, Ill., education)—One of the best defensive guards we have had, but a broken arm has kept him out of all but two games this fall. We need him against Tech."

"Ellis McClung (Bremen, industrial arts)—An underrated performer—one of the best offensive centers in the conference—fine blocker."

"Zippy Morocco (Youngstown, Ohio, education)—A great broken-field runner and pass-receiver—wish our line could have broke him in the open more times."

"Mal Cook (Dracut, Mass., physical education)—A fine boy who had more tough luck than any other football player I have known—good runner and passer—We're counting on him Saturday."

"Bob Durand (Wilkes-Barre, Pa., business administration)—A broken ankle kept Bob from showing his ball-carrying wares but he earned two letters as a point-after-touchdown kicker."

"Dick Rabor (Altoona, Pa., education)—Despite a bad knee throughout his career, Dick has been a determined runner and blocker—a fine competitor, one of our key men."

"Chuck Magoni (Columbus, industrial arts)—A broken neck and broken leg kept this boy from reaching great heights — hardest runner, pound for pound, I have seen."

Bulldogs Drill In Secret for Rest of Week

Special to The Atlanta Constitution

ATHENS, Ga., Nov. 27—It's secret practice for the Georgia Bulldogs this week as they prepare for the undefeated Georgia Tech Yellow Jackets.

No one was to be admitted behind "the iron curtain," the green-painted, tin-fenced enclosure of the Bulldogs' drill field.

Furthermore, several managers were to stand sentry above the hill overlooking the practice field to catch any would-be spies as the Bulldogs practice whatever straight-T or split-T plays Wallace Butts is grooming for the invasion of Grant Field Saturday.

MACON'S SPIVEY TOP CAGER IN CONSTITUTION'S SEC POLL

By EDWIN POPE

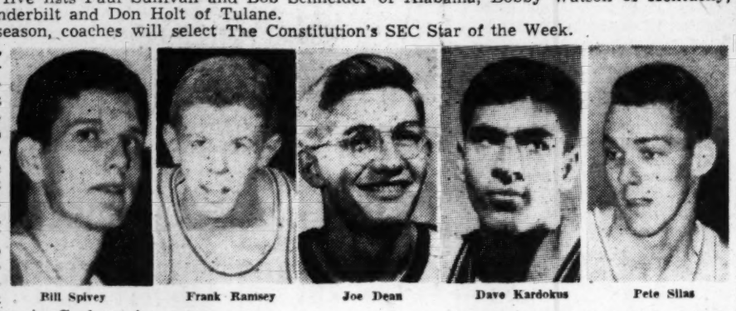

Two Kentuckians and one player each from Vanderbilt, LSU and Georgia Tech comprise The Constitution's third annual preseason all-Southeastern Conference basketball team.

League coaches chose the players. Only Adolph Rupp of Kentucky did not participate.

Who but Georgia-boy Bill Spivey, seven-foot Kentucky center, could lead the way? Besides the Macon native, Kentucky's Frank Ramsey, Vanderbilt's Dave Kardokus and LSU's Joe Dean are unanimous choices. Pete Silas of Georgia Tech is fifth man.

The second five lists Paul Sullivan and Bob Schneider of Alabama, Bobby Watson of Kentucky, Al Weiss of Vanderbilt and Don Holt of Tulane.

Again this season, coaches will select The Constitution's SEC Star of the Week.

Bill Spivey | Frank Ramsey | Joe Dean | Dave Kardokus | Pete Silas

Bill Spivey, Kentucky—Even as a junior, "Grits" was ranked nationally superior to Kansas' mammoth Clyde Lovellette. Last year he scored 479 points, failed by only 30 points to equal the all-time SEC scoring record set by Ole Miss' Bonnie Graham in 1938. The year before, as a sophomore, Spivey hooked in 495 points. Favorite shot is where he gets his hand above the basket and shoves the ball DOWN through it. Leg injury may handicap him but hardly can keep him from list of history's great SEC stars.

Frank Ramsey, Kentucky—Less than a year ago, two noted college coaches, St. Louis' Ed Hickey and Ramsey's own Adolph Rupp, called Ramsey the best player in America. Like Spivey, he is a repeater from the final all-SEC team of 1950-51. Greatest asset is driving in under the basket. Huge hands make him adroit ball-handler and his ruggedness in rebound scrambles is big factor in Wildcats' success. He's first big guard in the last decade on team marked by small, speedy sentinels.

Dave Kardokus, Vanderbilt—Slim, blackhaired Vanderbilt fireplug wasn't to be found among circuit's high scorers for last campaign but he's playmaker de luxe. Accomplished dribbler, bullet feeder. When Commodores shocked Kentucky in SEC tournament finals last March, Coach Bob Polk simply pointed to Kardokus.

Joe Dean, Louisiana State—Says Coach Harry Rabenhorst: "Joe is second to no basketball player in the nation. He can do everything and well. I wouldn't swap him for anyone anywhere." Rabenhorst's estimate is borne out by other mentors' opinions and Dean's own scoring figures—362 points in 24 games last year for a 15.1 average. As a sophomore, he hit a 12.9 median.

Pete Silas, Georgia Tech—The sophomore poured in 291 points in 25 games last year for 11.6 average. His frailty has been chief difficulty, as he is hard put to withstand under-basket scuffling. With added experience and a little more weight this season, Silas could become scoring ace of Dixie Dozen.

Bulldog Cagers Open Play Against Clemson

Special to The Constitution

ATHENS, Nov. 26—The Georgia basketball team, sans Bob Schloss, Earl Davis and Joe Jordan, the crafty little guard who died last summer after a great senior season, will make its 1951-52 debut against Clemson in the Tigers' lair Saturday night.

"We will be short on height but we will try to make up for it in fight," says hardwood mentor Harbin "Red" Lawson. "We only have three lettermen back with us, forward Bill Shain (6'0), Louisville, Ky., now playing guard; guard Jim Umbricht (6'4), Decatur, now at center, replacing Schloss, and Kermith Hall (6'1), Jacksonville, Fla., at guard. Umbricht and Shain were regulars last year and Hall saw a lot of action as a relief guard."

Coach Lawson, in his initial season at the Bulldog helm, also has returning Sonny Dykes (6'1), Cochran, at guard, and forwards Jim Marshall (6'0) and Nat Williams (6'0) both of Athens.

Up from last year's sensational freshman team is star guard Louie McGee (5'10), Jasper, Ind.; Harold Gold (5'8), Paterson, N. J., and Marvin Satterfield (6'8), left-handed hook shot artist from Canton.

"When football season is over Zippy Morocco will be a big help to us," added Lawson. Morocco earned a monogram behind Georgia's great Little Joe last season.

"I'd also like to get freshman Joe O'Malley from Coach Butts," quipped the hardwood mentor.

Rounding out the varsity are freshman Al Parrish (6'6), Adel; Emory Clements (6'0), Irwinville; Bubba Potts (6'4), Newton, and James Denny (6'3), Canton.

SEC TEAM OF WEEK

Rechichar MVP To The General

By JESSE OUTLAR

Wingback Bert Rechichar, captain of the unbeaten Tennessee powerhouse, probably won't have a seat on the all-Southeastern Conference team, while three teammates, tailback Hank Lauricella, tackle Pug Pearman and guard Ted Daffer, already have been acclaimed all-America.

But Robert Reese Neyland, the palatine of Knoxville, still considers the 190-pound Rechichar the most valuable player in his army. For the second straight year, The General has nominated Reichchar as the MVP of the SEC.

Bert Rechichar | Robert Neyland

Since Lauricella zoomed to prominence as perhaps the greatest back in the nation, there was speculation that Neyland might have changed his mind. But he hasn't. He still deems his captain the most important man on the squad, which makes Rechichar a stout candidate for All-Western Hemisphere.

The Vol 28-0 canter over Kentucky in their first real test of the year at Lexington last Saturday cemented Tennessee's standing as the Nation's number one team. And, of course, it brought the Knoxville Knights back for an encore as The Constitution's Team of the Week.

From his mountain headquarters, The General issued a communique through public relations officer Gus Manning Monday, praising all the troops for their gallantry in the Kentucky campaign.

A man who rarely deals in superlatives, Neyland was lavish in praise of his men for their perennial triumph over Kentucky. He cited Rechichar, Pearman, Daffer, Lauricella, quarterback Bill Barbish, who inhaled Babe Parilli's first pass, and end Vince Kaseta, a two-touchdown receiver, for special ribbons.

He also passed plaudits to all the coaching staff, particularly Emmett Lowery, the basketball coach whose expert scouting made it easy for the Vols to cage the Wildcats.

There are several reasons why Neyland considers Rechichar the key man in his regiment. The Vol handy man is a good runner, an excellent blocker, a deadly tackler from his safety position, kicks off and toes the extra points. In addition, he's a great leader and is due a large share of the credit for the great esprit de corps of the Vols.

Latest bulletins inform that The General is waiting until after the Sugar Bowl battle with mighty Maryland to rank this outfit for posterity.

However, many Tennessee supporters and former players say it is the greatest team in Vol annals. Coach Bobby Dodd of Georgia Tech, an All-America disciple under Neyland, is among those placing this squad at the top of the list. "They can do more things better," Dodd explains, "than any other team The General ever had."

Harry Mehre, former Georgia and Ole Miss coach, who studied some of Tennessee's finest teams from close range, agrees with Dodd.

San Francisco Squad Severed From Orange Bowl's Possibles

Condensed From Constitution Wire Reports

Orange Bowl selectors Monday night narrowed their candidates for an opponent for Georgia Tech to five teams, eliminating undefeated University of San Francisco.

Left in the race, said officials, are Texas Christian, Baylor, Rice, Texas and Oklahoma. Bowl spokesmen gave no reason for dropping USF, but told a San Francisco sports writer that presence of two Negroes on the team was not a consideration.

Tennessee's football team for the first time this year received a day off from practice. But Robert Neyland, Vol head coach, denied the victory over Kentucky had anything to do with it. The fields were too muddy for scrimmage, he said.

Furman University's athletic director for the past two years, James G. Meade, has resigned effective Dec. 31.

The Professional Golfers Association, meeting in Chicago, said it is considering a Canadian proposal for U. S.-Canadian golf matches similar to the U. S.-British Ryder Cup matches.

Red Barber will broadcast the Senior Bowl game at Mobile, Ala., under a three-year contract signed by the Mobile Arts and Sports Association and CBS.

Frank Leahy's chief assistant at Notre Dame, Bernie Crimmins, let it be known he was ready to consider any head coaching propositions, especially from Indiana or Pittsburgh.

Vic Sexias of Philadelphia was seeded second to Wimbledon champion Dick Savitt of East Orange, N. J., as the Victorian championships prepared to open at Melbourne, Australia.

Paul Fagan, owner of the San Francisco Seals of the Pacific Coast League, signed Tommy Heath of the Minneapolis Millers to manage the Seals for two years. Heath succeeds Lefty O'Doul, who has been manager 17 years.

Johnny Bright, Drake's great back, had a full meal for the first time since he suffered a broken jaw in the Oklahoma A. & M. game Oct. 20. Until now all his meals had been soups and other liquids.

Lou Little, veteran Columbia University football coach, blamed colleges if football players slide through school taking snap courses. Defending the game, Little said that coaches would adhere to the rules, but it was up to the colleges to set them up.

Southeastern Conference coaches were mum on whether they will support a 1951-52 SEC basketball tournament, though they reached agreement at a meeting at Birmingham, Ala. LSU coach Harry Rabenhorst was re-elected president of the coaches association and Tulane's Cliff Wells was renamed secretary.

Maryland's share of the Sugar Bowl receipts will be used for athletic plant improvements, Coach Jim Tatum announced.

It became official Monday: Stanford and Illinois will meet in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena New Year's Day. Voting of the Big Ten and Pacific Coast Conferences was completed over the week end.

Herky Payne of Tennessee increased his SEC scoring lead with his six points against Kentucky Saturday. He has 72 points, 12 more than his closest challenger, Harry Jones, one of the Wildcats' scoring twins. Alabama's Bobby Marlow, who again failed to score, was tied for third with 54 by Tennessee's Andy Kozar.

Alf Holmberg, the Swede who graces the distance track men at Tennessee, finished second in the NCAA cross-country meet, 30 yards behind Herb Semper of Kansas University. It was the second straight year the 146-pound Kansan took the title. Miss year in 20:09.5, some 22 seconds better than his 1950 time.

Kentucky will do virtually all of its training for the Cotton Bowl at Lexington, Coach Paul Bryant said. While the varsity is enjoying a three-week layoff, the freshmen will work toward developing more help for the varsity at several positions, Bryant told an alumni banquet.

Joe Cambria, manager of the Havana club of the Florida International Baseball League, said the loop is polling members on raising its classification from B to A. "The fans are clamoring for better baseball and that's the only way we can give it to them," Cambria said.

Blue-Gray Game Picks Campbell, Burgamy, Bauer

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Nov. 26—(AP)—The South, winner of eight out of 12 Blue-Gray all-star football games, was ready to rise again as a 24-man player roster and a three-man coaching staff were completed Monday.

The two coaches announced are Rex Enright, South Carolina mentor, and Ivy Williamson, Wisconsin's head man.

Enright joins Rusty Russell of SMU and Gaynell Tinsley of LSU on the Rebel staff. Dick Harlow, former Harvard coach, and Rip Engle of Penn State previously had signed to drill the Northern squad.

Seven Rebel players accepted invitations for the 13th annual Blue-Gray tiff. They are Alabama halfback Bimbo Melton; Auburn captain and guard Ed (Foots) Bauer; tackle Marion Campbell and guard Ed Burgamy of Georgia; center Larry Smith of South Carolina; tackle Bob Patton, Clemson, and end Mike McLean, Tulane.

West Point, Cordele Alone Unbesmirched

Six Playoff Teams Beaten Or Tied in Regular Season

By CHARLIE ROBERTS

Eight powerful football teams will take the field over the week-end in quest of North or South Georgia championships in four classifications, yet so tough has been the sledding along the route that only two, West Point and Cordele—both in Class B—can boast of records that have not felt the blight of a defeat or tie.

Carlton Lewis' amazing West Pointers, now having run their regular-season victory skein to 40 straight, will play host to L. C. (Flash) Gordon's Thomson Bulldogs on Friday night for the North Georgia Class B crown. The Bulldogs' record was slightly soiled by a 6-6 stalemate with Class C Warrenton.

Glen Yancey, who succeeded Frank Jones at Cordele so that worthy could produce another champion at Decatur, will tackle Jesup's incoming Yellow Jackets for the South Georgia B title the same night. Ben Park's Jesupers went outside their classification to take it on the chin from Glynn Academy, 18-14, and Valdosta, 20-0.

Knuck McCrary's Moultrie Packers, Oliver Hunnicutt's LaGrange Grangers and Bernie Reid's Albany Indians have been the number one spoilers in so far as records of championship elevens are concerned.

LaGrange put a black mark on the records of both unbeaten Newnan and Gainesville, who play each other for the North Georgia A diadem at Griffin Friday. The Grangers tied the Tigers, 26-26, and bounced the Red Elephants, 14-0. Gainesville also bowed to Elberton, 13-7, but vengeance was theirs in the playoffs, 7-0.

Clayton Deavers' Gainesvillians put the only blot on the escutcheon of Decatur's Bulldogs who will mix it with O'Keefe in Atlanta for the North Georgia AA title, a 12-0 job. Hank Langston's O'Keefers were tied by Griffin, 13-13, and Grady, 0-0, and were punished by Chattanooga Central and Miami High—two of the South's top elevens—12-7 and 20-0.

Harry Milligan's Richmond Academy bowed only before Riverside, a prep school, 6-0, and takes on thrice-beaten Jordan in Columbus. The Columbus lads were downed by Eufaula, Ala., 14-13; Richmond Academy, 19-6, and Albany, 13-6, before beating Albany, 14-13, in a playoff.

Moultrie whacked the knuckles of both Valdosta and Tifton who will battle it out at Tifton for the South Georgia A top rung. Valdosta went down, 19-6, Tifton, 35-7, Middle Georgia College also took the Valdosta measure, 13-6, as did Albany, 14-6. Valdosta roughed up Tifton in regular season, 6-0.

Forest Park, humbled only slightly by a 20-20 tie with Hawkinsville after beating the same team, 31-0, journeys to the home grounds of Calhoun for a North Georgia C title settler. Calhoun tasted the dregs of defeat from the cup of Model, 27-0, Bremen, 14-7, and Austell, 12-0.

Warrenton, set to invade Cuthbert for the South Georgia C crown on Thursday night, had its troubles only with teams of higher classification. Wrightsville prevailed, 25-0, but Washington, Thomson and Greensboro settled for 6-6, 6-6 and 19-19 stalemates, respectively. Cuthbert fell only before "big boys" also, Americus making it tough, 28-0, and Terrell County barely getting by, 19-18.

Thus, no matter who ascends the throne, there will be a lot of others who will solace themselves with "we beat or tied the champions" outlooks.

NEA Selects Beck Defensive All-American

More All-American prizes have arrived at Georgia Tech, this one addressed to Ray Beck, Left Guard, Georgia Tech, USA.

The NEA press service, whose selections are those of veteran Harry Grayson, places Beck on the first defensive A-A, and with him is his Southern rival, Ted Daffer of Tennessee. Also landed on this unit is Pug Pearman, the ferocious Vol tackle.

On the offensive team, three SEC delegates also are represented, Hank Lauricella of Tennessee and Babe Parilli of Kentucky, as expected, and George Tarasovic, LSU center, surely unexpected.

DECATUR'S BILL MEBANE BARS O'KEEFE'S PATH TO CHAMPIONSHIP

Coach Frank Jones Rates 175-Pounder Best Pivotman in State

ONE OF THE JONES BOYS HAD GOOD HELPERS

Sweat, Hard Labor---Not Magic Gave Decatur Unexpected Title

By CHARLIE ROBERTS

Frank Jones has no silk topper out of which he pulls rabbits, no white tie and tails, nothing up his sleeve, is no magician, is not clairvoyant and has no more idea than you and I how his Decatur Bulldogs managed to win another football championship this year.

The pleasant one-time University of North Carolina athlete, who shook the tar from his heels to coach two years at downyonder Cordele before coming to Decatur, doesn't believe he or his brand of split T had much to do with the success of the Bulldogs, who were expected to get their revenge - born lumps this season for wounds they ripped into enemies of the past.

Frank Jones

The Black Knights of the suburbs—they jersey themselves in the color of mourning—opened with only two regulars from last year's Class AA state championship team, Halfback Al Browning and Center Bill Mebane, and soothsayers said they would watch 1951 playoffs from the stands. Yet Friday night will find this upstart gang suited up to battle O'Keefe's City League king, for the North Georgia title at Grady Stadium.

How come? The coaching one of the Jones boys analyses this way: "I fell heir to the great spirit and winning type boy that Decatur has been spawning for years, plus what I believe is the best group of assistant coaches in the state."

"Mel Atkins has done wonders with the line, and the same goes for John Fleming and Lawrence Thompson with the backs. Major Billy Bell and Jack Fligg, who handle our B team, have burned the midnight oil with us, too. Hard work and good luck went hand in hand, I suppose."

Jones considers Browning, who scored 12 of Decatur's 15 touchdowns before a shoulder separation separated him from the team for good after the seventh game, the best running back in the state. The 175-pound Mebane is, in his book, without a peer in the state as a center and line backer.

But Decatur kept right on winning when Mebane and Browning were both out. How come, again? "Well, by the time that pair went out, Jerry Sturm, a very underrated player, had developed into an exceptional split T quarterback. He's very good," imagines Jones.

"Some of the players at our weak spots came through far beyond our expectations. Lowell Wammock, Jimmy Sturm and Bob Becker at the ends are notable examples. Cliff Waddell, even though out part of the time with a broken hand, and Lucien Tatum began reacting the way only good tackles do.

"Our guards were vastly improved by midyear. Eddie Patrick became a terror on defense, and Dan Logue, a sophomore of whom we naturally expected little, became so able we used him extensively on both offense and defense."

Stan Thornton, 160-pound fullback, took over at left half after Browning was felled, and has done well. Henry Ivey, 150-pound sprite who played often last year, has carried his share of the halfbacking load well and consistently.

Earl Fuller, budding soph star, was a punting standout until he broke a leg. Then Tom Crawford who hadn't punted all year, stepped into the breach and booted like a soon-to-be Ralph Kercheval in a sensational exhibition in the final West Fulton game.

That's the 1951 chapter of the Decatur success story.

FOUR COLLEGE PROSPECTS

White Rabbit Deception Credited to Richmond

By RANDY RUSSELL

Special to The Constitution

AUGUSTA, Nov. 26—Harry Milligan of Richmond Academy may not be the coach of the year in Georgia high school circles, but his most severe critic will be obliged to admit that the onetime student of Bill Alexander is doing all right for himself in Augusta.

The Georgia Tech product invaded the public school ranks in 1950 after making a name for himself at Darlington School at Rome. His Richmond Musketeers have lost only three regular season games since then, two of them, ironically, to private schools. Lanier, which beat the Musketeers during the 1950 season and beat them again in the play-offs that year, is the only Georgia High School Association team that has won over a Milligan-coached Richmond eleven.

The only defeat the Region 2-AA kingpins have absorbed this year came from Riverside Military Academy, 6-0. Some say a torrential downpour which soaked Richmond's field that night was mainly to blame for the upset, probably the most astounding of the year in Georgia prep circles. Some say the coach's almost letter-perfect system of inspiration went sour, just for once.

For a fact, Milligan hadn't put much stress on the game, for he had a couple of tough regional games coming up and he's the sort that figures it's impossible to get a team "up" every Friday night. Proof of the pudding is the fact that Richmond's most respected rivals — Glynn, Jordan, Benedictine and Boys' Catholic—all took sound whippings from a team well prepared mentally.

Milligan calls this year's smart, opportunist team better than last year's. "Last year we had only one college prospect" (Bobby Eubanks, now at Georgia Tech), he says. "This year we have three or four."

In the spotlight now is quarterback Jack Hall, a faker a la Parilli who can also pass and run with style. He's the chief magician in a backfield that can fake you dizzy with Johnny Menger, a cool hand who can run and pass with the best of them, powerful Hank Schneider, a big boy who could carry the mail in college ball, and J. L. Brown, who frequently carries on a key play when the opposition is looking for Menger.

Up front the big guns are center Ed Brandon and tackle Bill Smith, but the whole line puts up a stout wall behind which Hall and his helpers make the football act like a vaudeville white rabbit.

REPLACES DAVIDSON

Florida State Is Added To Tech's '52 Schedule

Georgia Tech has added Florida State University to its 1952 football schedule, replacing Davidson.

The Jackets have signed a one-year contract with the Tallahassee school and the contest will be played in Atlanta November 22.

Up-and-coming FSU, under Don Veller, has compiled a 26-4 won-lost record the past four seasons. The Seminoles recently took another step toward the "big time" by announcing a broad plan of subsidization for players.

This is the third newcomer on the Tech chart. Army and Tulane earlier replaced Kentucky and VMI.

Nearly Third of Georgians Receiving Unemployment Pay Are 65 or Over

By M. L. ST. JOHN

Almost one-third of the Georgians drawing unemployment compensation today are persons 65 years old or older. They were forced into retirement, and are making themselves available for new jobs, State Labor Commissioner Ben T. Huiet said Monday. These persons, Huiet added, are making themselves available for new jobs through the state office.

As mandatory retirement programs are expanded into more business and industrial firms, more elderly people—still wanting to work—are retired, Huiet said. They are eligible for 20 weeks unemployment at a maximum of $20 a week if they worked for firms covered by the Unemployment Compensation Act. When they sign up for compensation they also list themselves as available for new jobs. Huiet said his office has found jobs for some of these people.

Georgia is about a "middle" state in the jobless compensation program, Huiet reported.

0.25 PER CENT

Its minimum tax on industries and business firms to support the program is 0.25 per cent, as compared with the national average of 0.33 per cent. Minimum rates among the states range from 0.00 to 1.3 per cent. Georgia and South Carolina tie for the second lowest rate in the Southeast. Florida at 0.10 per cent is the lowest. Huiet said Florida doesn't pay jobless persons as many weeks as does Georgia.

In the Southeast, Georgia payments of $20 for 20 weeks is on parity with other states. Nationally, Georgia ranks in the lower third of states.

Georgia, with the largest population, ranks third in the number of unemployed in the Southeast. Not an industrial state, it doesn't rank high among the states in numbers receiving unemployment compensation.

12,700 ON ROLLS

Current number of persons drawing jobless payments in Georgia is 12,700. The peak was 31,500 in 1945. The lowest number was 7,800 in 1944.

Huiet said the department has reduced the tax on employers three times since the program began in 1937, and has increased the benefits to jobless workers twice—but still the surplus is piling up.

70 MILLION PAID OUT

Monday, the department had $118,000,000 surplus on deposit with the federal government in Washington for use in paying unemployment compensation claims. The money can be used only for this purpose.

He said a total of $70,000,000 has been paid to Georgia unemployed since the first payment was made in 1939. He claimed that the reductions in tax on employers have saved them $99,000,000. There are 12,660 industries and business firms contributing to the fund.

The maximum and minimum tax was 2.7 per cent in 1937. Since then, the state has cut the minimum tax first to 1 per cent, then to 0.5 per cent, and now to 0.25 per cent. An employer's tax depends upon his "experience rating"—including the amount of tax he has paid, the benefits paid out chargeable to his account, and the increase in his payroll. The maximum tax still is 2.7 per cent.

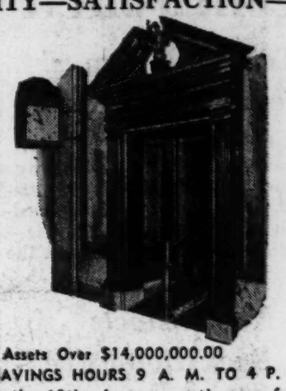

At the start of the program, jobless Georgians received a maximum of $15 for 16 weeks. This was increased to $18 for 16 weeks in 1944 and then to $20 for 20 weeks last year.

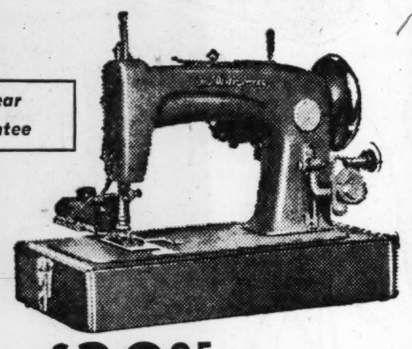

Chicken Business Up

NEW YORK — (AP) — Chicken raising has become such a big business these days that production of 80,000 broilers a week is not too difficult an accomplishment. One farm near Salisbury, Md., can turn out that many from a "plant" comprising 18 chicken houses, with the broiler houses measuring 48 by 620 feet.

4 Parachutists Uninjured After Quitting Plane

Four Air Force men who parachuted to safety from a fuel-less C-45 twin-engine transport Sunday night were said by Dobbins Air Force Base officials to be uninjured after they abandoned their plane over Spalding county in a defense fog.

The plane crashed after a long glide, they said, about 100 yards northwest of U. S. Highway 41, near the Henry-Spalding county line, a mile from Sunnyside community.

The four Air Force men were listed as Maj. R. G. Brown, the pilot, Maj. James P. Keane, Cpl. G. L. Orfe, and Pfc. D. A. Fish, all of Maxwell Air Force Base in Montgomery, Ala.

The four were on a flight from Philadelphia after navigational training over the weekend.

DeKalb Area May Lose Fire Shield

Atlanta may suspend fire protection to approximately 100 homes in the Stonybrook section of DeKalb County if an agreement between the city and DeKalb County is not reached.

The Atlanta Board of Firemasters Monday night voted to discontinue the service after Chief Styron reported that DeKalb Commissioner Scott Candler had not established a fire district and paid proceeds into the Atlanta treasury as was agreed upon in January, 1949.

The county has paid the city $50 for each call the fire department has made into the area but the district has not been created, Styron said.

The board also empowered Styron to urge the National Board of Fire Underwriters to send engineers to Atlanta to survey the 82 additional square miles which will be added to Atlanta in January, to determine whether lower insurance rates would be possible.

Styron announced that 617 firemen, who will make up the department after the Plan of Improvement becomes operative next January, have been asked to attend meetings at Taft Hall Friday and Saturday.

One group of firemen will meet at 7:30 p. m. Friday and the other will meet at 10 a. m. Saturday.

Port Heads Hit Tidelands Compromise

SAVANNAH, Nov. 26—(AP)—A determination to accept no "compromise" settlement of the question of tidelands ownership was voiced as the annuel South Atlantic Ports Conference got underway here Monday.

Reporting on the current status of tidelands legislation in Congress, T. C. Maurer of Jacksonville, Fla., warned that talk of a compromise on the issue is now circulating.

Maurer said interest in ownership of the submerged lands is not confined to the oil-producing states such as California, Louisiana and Texas, but the subject is of interest to many states. He cited lucrative mineral mining oporations in Florida as indicative of the interest that state has in the tidelands areas.

At the suggestion of Maurer and Henry W. Sweet of Savannah, president of the American Association of Port Authorities and manager of the Georgia State Ports, a resolution was agreed on whereby the "no compromise" stand would be conveyed to the states' attorneys general and congressional representatives.

Reporting on the proposed St. Lawrence River Seaway, opening the Great Lakes to high seas traffic, Maurer explained that the South Atlantic Ports Conference is opposed because of a "conceivable loss of traffic."

R. T. Spangler of Port Everglades, Fla., called for a resolution taking the Federal Government to task for its price control, ports development program and maintenance of the merchant marine.

D. Leon Williams of Atlanta, president of the conference, in his annual report, called for greater co-operation between members of the conference in co-ordinating efforts for the benefit of the South Atlantic area.

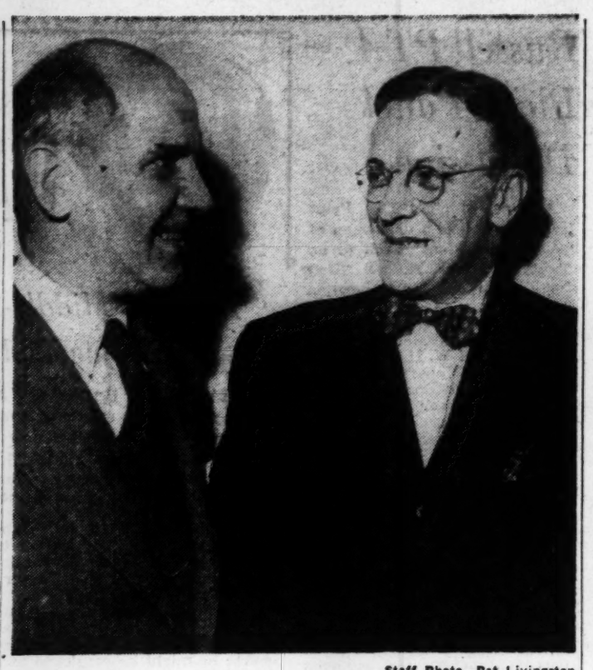

Col. C. K. Harding, Southeastern U. S. division engineer, and John Correll, Atlanta, business specialist of the U. S. Department of Commerce, are on Tuesday's program.

CONVOCATION BRINGS COUNCIL LEADERS TO CITY

Dr. Gerald Knoff, Left, Talks to Dr. Roswell P. Barnes

Protestant Leaders To Air Racial Changes at Parley

By PAT LIVINGSTON

Top leaders of U. S. Protestantism begin a three-day conference in Atlanta Tuesday in which such controversial topics as racial changes in the South, morality and national integrity, communism, church-state relationships and human rights are expected to be discussed.

The Southeastern Convocation at St. Luke's Episcopal Church will draw more than 1,000 delegates from 15 member-denominations in 10 Southern states and top leaders from the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the U. S. A.

The Rev. Ernest J. Arnold, director of the Southeastern office of the council, said: "Our purpose is to bring the churches an awareness of what they can achieve together in helping solve the crucial issues of our time."

Facing the task of "making this a nation under God," the council called this convocation on its first anniversary.

The Rt. Rev. Henry Knox Sherrill of New York, president of the national council, and Bishop Arthur J. Moore will be major speakers at the 7:30 p. m. opening service which will begin with a robed procession of denominational, national and regional church leaders.

"CHURCH HAS CHANCE"

The Rev. Dr. Samuel McCrea Cavert, general secretary, and Dr. Gerald Knoff and Dr. Roswell P. Barnes, administrative secretaries, in an interview Monday night agreed "the church now has a chance."

Dr. Barnes, director of the council's division of Christian life and work, commented at the news conference:

"I believe the trend in America is not nearly so optimistic about the inevitability of progress as 20 years ago. The sober viewpoint is that there is something basically wrong with the world that institutions and social processes cannot cure."

Dr. Knoff, director of Christian education, emphasized reaching people "not only through pew, pulpit and altar," but through all types of communication.

FREE MIND

"Protestant fundamentals stand for the free mind—a spirit that cherishes freedom—an inherent opposition to any totalitarianism," said Dr. Cavert.

"We are concerned," revealed Dr. Barnes, "in how to reach the common people and intelligencia outside churches," while Dr. Knoff pointed out that church membership now has reached 53.1 per cent of the total U. S. population and listed it as evidence of the church's growing voice in national life.

The council, celebrating its first birthday anniversary Thursday, feels its problems are the problems of success—the record of last year demonstrating the atmosphere of interfaith and good will and the "great impetus" and attention focused on the movement of co-operation among churches.

29 DENOMINATIONS

The council is composed of 29 denominations, but does not include Southern Baptists or Roman Catholics. It does not deal with the doctrine of any church, but "all churches share the basic faith in Jesus Christ as divine Lord and Saviour."

Speakers include Dr. J. R. McCain, moderator of the Presbyterian Church, U. S.; Dr. Franklin Clark Fry of New York, president of the United Lutheran Church; Dr. Frank Laubach, missionary and pioneer in the mass literacy movement.

Seminars will be conducted by leaders in fields of evangelism, religious liberty, morality, ministry to migrants and others.

Dr. Edward G. Mackay, superintendent, Decatur-Oxford district of the North Georgia Conference, will preside at Tuesday night's session.

Bakers Need Dough And So Do Burglars

BALTIMORE, Nov. 26—(AP). While employees mixed dough in the basement safecrackers stole some upstairs, a north Baltimore baker reported Monday. He said the loot included $3,320 cash.

Louis Rabai, owner of the bakery, told police burglars apparently battered the second-floor safe open against a background of noise made by the dough-mixing machine in the basement.

MISS SKINNER

Authoress Convulses Full House

By JEAN ROONEY

A full house and standees were engrossed for two hours Monday night by Cornelia Otis Skinner in a performance of monologues at Presser Hall, Agnes Scott College.

The large, raven-haired actress, in five sophisticated character sketches written by herself, kept the audience laughing through her one-woman performance.

Making gentle fun of familiar types of American womanhood, Miss Skinner's program included "Box of Powder," "Subscriber to the Symphony," "American Ancestor Worship," "Homework" and "The Yearly American Invasion." The audience, composed of as many men as women, gave heartiest guffaws at "Homework" in which Miss Skinner took the part of the Philadelphia matron helping junior with a math problem.

Miss Skinner showed her grasp of serious acting in an impersonation of an American wife in love with "another man" in "The Yearly American Invasion." Her only prop in the entire performance was a red velvet headpiece which she converted into seven hats to suit the characters she was playing.

Architects Named To Plan Remodeling for Grady

The Fulton-DeKalb Hospital Authority Monday authorized Frank Wilson, superintendent of Grady Hospital, to employ architects to prepare plans for remodeling parts of Grady at an estimated cost of $150,000 to $200,000.

Wilson said the changes to be made would depend on the architects' findings. He said Abreu & Robeson, architects, already had made a preliminary survey without cost, and he indicated he would ask that firm to complete the survey and submit recommendations.

Chairman Hugh Spalding said the hospital needs "more operating room facilities—and better facilities."

He said plans for remodeling have been delayed in the hope the proposed new Grady Hospital would be built soon—"but we can't keep on waiting for a new hospital."

Wilson said if the new hospital were started tomorrow, it probably would be five years before it could be completed.

Wilson reported the State Board of Nursing Examiners would require in 1954 that all nurses have three months of psychiatric nursing before being certified by the board. He said student nurses at Grady will be sent to mental hospitals at Milledgeville or Chattahoochee, Fla., for experience in psychiatric nursing.

The authority voted to give bonuses totaling $8,500 to employees of Grady who have not been absent from work during the past year and to employees absent less than seven days.

In answer to questions about the psychiatric detention ward at Grady, Wilson said patients in the ward receive "good medical care but not psychiatric treatment."

He said many of the patients were sent to the state hospital at Milledgeville, and he admitted some of them were sent primarily "because their famiiles wanted to get rid of them." He said responsibility for sending patients to Milledgeville rests with the county lunacy commission.

Linen Firm Stock Asked In Suit Here

A suit claiming ownership of 487,683 shares of common stock in the National Linen Service Corporation was filed in the clerk's office of the U. S. District Court here Monday by Mrs. Odile V. Hubert Tucker of New Orleans as a stockholder of the Crescent City Laundries, Inc.

The suit alleged that stockholders in the Crescent City company are entitled to the shares plus dividends paid on the stock since it was issued in 1932, because of the deal by which National Linen absorbed Crescent City Laundries.

Named as defendants in the suit were the National Linen Service Corporation and its principal officers and stockholders including I. M. Weinstein, president; J. B. Jacobs, A. J. Weinberge, Herbert J. Haas, T. A. Martin and the Trust Company of Georgia, as executor of the estate of George H. Fauss.

The company, incorporated in Delaware, has offices in Atlanta and operates in cities throughout the South.

The U. S. Supreme Court recently ruled against stockholders in Crescent City Laundries of New Orleans in a similar suit.

FAMILY LIFE FOR THESE IS OFTEN AT THE BREAKING POINT

These people live in glass houses and like it while it lasts. L. to r., is a glamourous informal shot; next; a suave gentleman and last the small fry

BEAUTIFUL BUT DUMMIES

People Who Live In Glass Houses Lose Their Heads!

By YOLANDE GWIN

People who live in glass houses can expect anything to happen. Things like losing their heads, their arms, legs or hands.

These people are the store window dummies whose only mission in life is to look beautiful, be dumb and lure vulnerable shoppers into the stores.

The woman dummies with the famed Mona Lisa smiles know that few, if any, of their sidewalk admirers can duplicate their smart appearance, their well-groomed look and their glamorous attire. According to Tra Chambers, a window display official at one of the local stores, the life of a feminine dummy is short lived. He says:

"The life of a woman mannequin is about one year. They have to be changed according to the change in fashion. The woman sizes run from 10 to 12 while the junior sizes are about 11 to 13 in measurements. The woman models are about five feet eight inches tall, and they wear a six and a half size shoe. The torso and head are one piece, and the legs, arms, and hands are adjustable. The hands are a very interesting part of the body make-up for these dummies. They have to be flexible. The hair on the models used now are styled according to the latest fashion, while the wet lip technique is something new which adds a more lifelike appearance."

The models do not wear "undies" unless of course the clothes are transparent. Their figures are so streamlined, and so perfect that they do not wear girdles or corsets. Many of the models now in use have flexible waists, too.

The man models are usually a size 38 long and stand six feet. They do not wear any shorts nor shirts from the "undi-world" either. According to Chambers the men are much harder to dress than the women. The heads are removable to. The men have sculptured heads, but their arms, hands and legs are, like the women's, adjustable.

The child models are for all ages and up to a size of the average 8-year-old. The model is all in one piece. The vogue nowadays for the little girl models is for a pigtail hairdress.

There's a city ordinance which says a model—man, woman or child—cannot stand naked in the windows between change of costumes. So models are usually dressed either in the various departments or in the windows—when the curtains are drawn.

Chair Won't Groan at Hubby in Future, Squeakless Springs Are on the Way

NEW YORK, Nov. 26—(INS)—Hubby will soon be able to plunk down in thea easy chair without a protest—from the springs.

A new way to silence squeaking seat springs has just been devised for use in furniture and auto seat manufacture.

The method is to coat the springs with an adhesive and then with rayon flock—rayon fibers so short and fine it takes 250,000 to cover a square inch.

Experiments have been conducted with auto seats and now the method is on its way to use in chairs, sofas, beds and other spring-supported pieces.

Sugar Plums

"Visions of sugar plums" may include candied fruit peel. After soaking grapefurit or orange peel strips 24 hours in salt water, cover, drain, rinse and soak 20 minutes in fresh water. Drain again, cover with fresh water, boil for 20 minutes, drain again. Measure as much sugar as you have peel, cook carefully over very low heat until all sugar is absorbed.

Use kitchen tongs instead of a fork when turning meat under the broiler. It prevents piercing surface and allowing juices to escape.

Good Posture Is in Style; How's Yours?

By IDA JEAN KAIN

Looking back, it appears there is a style in posture, just as surely as there is a fashion in clothes and hair styling.

Remember the Gibson girl's posture? She was frightfully swaybacked and walked a little like a duck, toes pointed out. But that was all the style in those throw-your-shoulders-back-chest-out-days. No wonder fashion featured the bustle in that period . . . when milady carried her chest out and forward, naturally the small of the back swayed sharply in, and hips bustled out rearward.

We survived that period, and the next major change was along Irene Castle lines. The Castle vogue started a movement which resulted in the regrettable Debutante Slouch. Wasn't it awful! Young ladies, particularly, adopted a slump and a slinking gait . . . and this was no help to the silhouette either.

From there we went to the nonchalant, indifferent posture, with shoulders rounded.

Well, happily, we survived that, too. Then came the glamor girl and this glamorous trend is responsible for today's lovely, natural posture. Shoulders are no longer thrown back, or held rigid, or rounded carelessly. The aim is to keep the shoulders straight, but relaxed. The chest is no longer pushed unnaturally forward. The uplift action is done with the midsection muscles, which automatically raise the chest, but at the same time streamline the middle measurement. This control through the middle of the figure makes for complete freedom of motion and graceful movement.

Today's posture gives the figure and spirits a lift. It is relaxed, aligned right and lovely to look at . . . may it never change! The only posture rule is UP . . . pull up with the midsection muscles, and let this uppull extend to the top of the head, with that bump of self-esteem held high.

MARY HAWORTH

Should Middle-Aged Couple Sell Home and Buy Farm?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: John and I are a happy couple, now in middle age, married 28 years. We own our home and have three grown children, two now married. Our married daughter Lyda lives in a great industrial city; and she and her husband want to buy a farm. The one they want isn't far from here, and they would like for Dad and me to buy in with them. It would mean selling our home.

We don't know too much about Ed. He and Lyda have been married six years, and we see them only when we go there for vacation visits, lasting two weeks. He seems very nice then. And twice they were here, once for a week, and another time for 10 days.

I understand that my husband's job may not last much longer, as he is a streetcar motorman and we've heard rumors that the transportation system may change over to bus service entirely. Of course he might be employed as a bus driver, but we don't know. So, all things considered, would you advise us to take up farming with Ed and Lyda?

The big question is, can we get along on this farm together? We get along just fine together now; but living together all the time, would that work out? In case we came to a disagreement and left the farm, it would mean that John and I would have to rent a place, or start again to buy a home. We aren't getting any younger, and Ed and Lyda have their life yet to live. Please let us have your opinions on what we should do.

P. J.

DEAR P. J.: It seems to me that the whole weight of common sense is against your going in with Ed and Lyda to buy a farm. As I see the proposition, you have nothing worthwhile to gain and everything to lose.

It takes a dependable cash income or a backlog of capital to tide the venture through for several years, a background of agricultural knowledge (acquired by work experience or special schooling), a good business head, plus physical stamina and indefatigable industry to get launched as a self-sustaining farmer nowadays.

Buying a farm as a potential source of livelihood is not a sound undertaking for city novices, who have no great earning competence in other fields. And it definitely is inadvisable for persons nearing retirement age, who would be sinking all their savings in a touch-and-go gamble with the soil.

Furthermore, the psychological implications of Ed's proposition are discouraging. If he had bedrock confidence in his ability to make good, he wouldn't be trying to negotiate a feather-bed deal with his father-in-law, designed to minimize personal responsibility and reduce anxiety. Obviously he wants somebody reliable back of him, someone who will take over the reins when he falters or loses heart. And I gather he is talking through Lyda mostly, prodding her to wheedle you into using your influence to sell dad on the idea. All of which signifies a lack of the courage and character necessary to weather hardships successfully.

Then, too, there is the question you pose, as to how the two families would get along if compressed into one household. It is axiomatic that "no house is big enough for two women," you know.

Now that your children are grown, you've earned the privilege of safeguarding your comfort and security against any self-serving schemes they may propose as a shared risk. My advice is to stay as you are, steadfast in your familiar home; and don't be worried by rumors of job-uncertainty. If and when a change of employment is forced upon John, look to it as opportunity, and something better is bound to unfold.

Off to Hollywood Again

It was not that they loved Hedy Lamarr less but that they loved us. . . . (No, even our youngest and most doting child wouldn't swallow that one.) Let's see. Hollywood is always on the lookout for really fresh talent and . . . (Might as well face it, we're not THAT fresh. In fact, we never were.) The bright lights of the Cinema City called us and . . .

Aw well, the truth of the matter is that the boss said "Go" and we're going. Back to Hollywood. The Sunday Journal-Constitution magazine has need of more stories about the stars and for the next two weeks we'll be knocking on studio doors, stumbling over electric cables on sets, bumping into arc lights and trying our best to make the proper obeisance to the proper stars. (Starlets you can call by their first names in a sort of pseudo-maternal fashion and you can either memorize a couple of names—most of the new crop is named Janet or June—or you can go Hollywood and call everybody "Dear." But bona fide stars you must be careful to call "Miss" and it's nice if you can get a your-royal-highness tone in your voice.)

Anyhow, we're going back and we're just about as excited as if we hadn't been there twice before. (Just think, three trips to Hollywood. Pretty soon we'll be such an old-timer out there Franchot Tone will feel free to spit in our face!)

The only thing that troubles us about going away from home at this season is the unfinished business. There are a lot of things we meant to write about before Christmas and now there may not be time. For one thing we meant to do a piece about a smart and courageous woman who lives out in the country near Newnan, "Miss Kate" Reid. Miss Kate, who is really Mrs. Milton Reid, has had a lot of trouble and illness in her family but she has taken hold with a will that makes you want to help her. When her husband lost his job about a year ago she cast about for something she could do at home to make money and hit upon making rag dolls. She had no previous experience at doll-making but she had children and she knew that a rag doll has a peculiar kind of magic for little folks and she plugged along—putting love and hope into embroidered faces and cuddly bodies. The dolls are adorable and people who know about them found that their charm takes a hold on young'uns like no rag doll since the flour company stopped printing Dolly Dimples on their flour sacks years ago. The only trouble is that in the country it's hard for folks to hear about Miss Kate's dolls. Her sales, while encouraging, haven't been enough to balance the family books, especially with a brain operation necessary for one of the children.

So, we wanted to write about the dolls our Mary has one and loves it devotedly) with the hope that if anybody has a candidate for a rag doll on their Christmas list they will communicate with Mrs. Reid, Route 1, Newnan, or her friend and sponsor, Mrs. T. S. Powers.

That's just one piece of unfinished business. There are others but, after all, Hollywood will only take two weeks and, like MacArthur, we shall return unless . . . well wouldn't it be funny if some talent scout just happened to be looking for our type beauty?

Tech-Georgia Game Gives Spalding Family Excuse for Reunion

By ANNIE LOU HARDY

With the Tech-Georgia football game looming as the cause celebre, Atlantans anticipate one of the gayest seasons of the year next week end. The occasion is always a good excuse for a reunion among the Spalding clan who will begin to gather early on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Tillman and their children, Eleanor and Bee, will come from Athens, and Mr. and Mrs. Billups Johnson and their son, Billy, will motor from Macon to be guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hughes Spalding on Peachtree Road.

Mrs. Hughes Spalding

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hughes Spalding Jr., at Dunwoody, guests will include their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Wright, and Mrs. Spalding's brother and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Meredith Graham, all of Rome.

Both families and their visitors will gather for luncheon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Spalding Sr. before the game. Afterwards Mr. and Mrs. Spalding Jr., will entertain at dinner at the Piedmont Driving Club for their guests.

MRS. SIMS BRAY SR., and Mr. and Mrs. Sims Bray Jr., have issued invitations for the cocktail hour on Saturday, Dec. 8, at the Piedmont Driving Club in compliment to Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Bray of New York whose marriage took place last Saturday in New York. The calling hours are from 5 to 7 p. m. The bride is the former Mrs. Eugenia Kilpatrick Plantinga of New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Bray Jr., Mrs. J. G. Oglesby and Mrs. Stuart Witham returned Monday from New York after attending the wedding. Mrs. Bray Sr. will return Thursday.

The bridal couple will arrive in Atlanta Dec. 7 for a two-day visit after honeymooning in New Orleans and Sea Island.

COL. AND MRS. THOMAS C. SPENCER arrive Tuesday to visit their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Farley Jr., on Peachtree for the remainder of the week. During World War II the Spencers resided at Ft. McPherson and were widely popular in Atlanta. Colonel Spencer, now retired, was in charge of the Signal Corps of the Southeast at that time.

The last of the week the visitors will fly to Healsburg, Calif., where they have bought a home. Before coming to Atlanta they visited relatives at Ft. Monroe, Va., and Baltimore.

TIFTON VISITORS in the city are Mr. and Mrs. Shine Fleetwood who are guests of Mrs. Fleetwood's brother and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Daniel, on Cherokee Rd. They are en route to Tifton from Rocky Mount, N. C., where they spent the past three months.

DUE TO THE ILLNESS of W. F. Winecoff Sr., who is a patient at St. Joseph's Infirmary, Mrs. W. F. Winecoff Sr. and her son, Capt. Frank Winecoff Jr., flew in from Puerto Rico during the week end. Captain Winecoff is stationed at Ramey Air Base in Puerto Rico, and his mother was visiting him there.

DR. AND MRS. STUART OGLESBY, who were married 40 years ago on Nov. 23, celebrated the occasion with a family dinner. Their guests included their son, Richard A. Oglesby; their daughter, Mrs. Henry L. Hills; Mr. Hills and their children, Frances, Henry Jr. and Mary Anna Hills, and Miss Brownie Williams of Agnes Scott.

Dr. Oglesby and the former Miss Myrtle Stovall were married in Little Rock, Ark., in 1911. They have two other sons, Lt. Col. Stuart Oglesby III, of Fort Snelling, Minn., and Ensign Lamar Oglesby of Coronado, Cal.

WHILE VACATIONING in Florida, Misses Ruby Dukes and Lucille Hudgins of Decatur, Miss Florence Turner and Mrs. Lynwood McCormick of Perry arrived at Boca Chica Naval Station near Key West just as President Truman landed there, and had the pleasure of greeting the Chief Executive. In Miami the Georgians were guests of Misses Helen Copelan and Doris Dukes, formerly of Decatur.

Miss Dukes and Miss Turner will continue their vacation in Nassau this week.

GREAT LADY OF THEATER COMES "HOME" QUIETLY
Cornelia Otis Skinner Shows One of Her Many Faces

Cornelia Otis Skinner Revisits Atlanta

By JEAN ROONEY

America's First Lady of the theater slipped quietly into Atlanta on a "blue" Monday morning. No cheering fans met her train. No flowers nor keys to the city were presented.

Cornelia Otis Skinner wanted it that way. Appearing in Atlanta almost annually since the 1920's, the handsome brunette actress felt she was coming home.

"Don't apoligize for the weather," she assured. "I've seen Atlanta in dogwood season."

In real life Mrs. Alden Blodget, she reminisced, "I made my first appearance on the professional stage in Atlanta in 1922."

She had a one-line part in her father's, Otis Skinner's, production of "Blood and Sand."

"No chance to see any of my Atlanta friends," she complained. She came for a one-night performance at Agnes Scott College.

Miss Skinner's "cock-eyed" schedule when she is on the road is to travel at night, eat a late breakfast-lunch and sleep the rest of the day.

Her performances demand more than most actresses'. She takes all the parts, playing as many as 30 to 40 roles in one performance.

Appearing without props or costumes, she depends on her mobile face and flexible voice to change character every few seconds.

A veteran theater performer, Miss Skinner "doesn't believe" in having her program printed beforehand.

She changes it according to her mood and the audience's.

A new character sketch she planned to do Monday evening was called "genealogy."

"I spoof Americans who brag about their ancestors," she laughed. She writes all of her plays and programs.

Performances in Birmingham and Troy, Ala., are next on her circuit. Then she hopes for a few days rest in Savannah.

She brought to Atlanta a manuscript she is writing called "Paris '90s," a play in which she will take all the roles, as usual. It will make a trial run in New England cities for eight weeks and then possibly go to Broadway.

As for Hollywood, Miss Skinner tried it once and had enough. She played in "The Uninvited." Hollywood people and ways did not suit her.

When her book, "Our Hearts Were Young and Gay" was made into a movie she was called to the movie capital to supervise.

"They didn't take my suggestions," she joked.

Skinner theatrical tradition will probably be carried on by her son, Otis Skinner Blodget (Dickie), Harvard student. "He is interested in the theater," his mother sighed.

"I'll have four weeks off for Christmas," Miss Skinner beamed.

She will spend it with her husband, her son and their pet dogs, Retrievers and Norwich terriers at their Long Island estate.

Hapeville Music Club To Receive

Dedication and open house of the Hapeville Music Club's new club house, 724 N. Central Ave. will be held from 3 to 9 p. m. Tuesday.

Receiving guests will be the club's new officers: Mrs. R. M. Brandon, president; Mrs. George Parker, Mrs. W. D. Pope, Mrs. J. B. Gorman, vice presidents; Mrs. J. C. Cummings, Mrs. Quincy O. Arnold, secretaries; Mrs. Thomas Lewis, treasurer.

Just because you've got stainless steel tableware don't neglect wiping knives, spoons, and forks dry after washing them in hot soapsuds. Stainless steel is modern and handsome but letting it lie without drying leaves a cloudy film on the polished surface.

Superstitious? Score Hubby, Self on This!

By MARTHA SMITH

Which sex is more superstitious . . . men or women? Which sex can distinguish scientific fact from popular unfounded beliefs?

Here's a test carried through at Dartmouth College whose results showed that at least 8 per cent of the men recognize scientific fact less than women do. Try this test in your home. Mark the following statements true or false.

1. Tides are affected by the moon.
2. Women mature earlier in hot climates.
3. Hair on the chest is an indication of masculinity.
4. Men have one more rib than women do.
5. Hair may turn gray overnight as the result of some harrowing experience.
6. Salmon swim for miles upriver to spawn.
7. Shaving makes hair grow faster.
8. Birthmarks are hereditary.
9. When pursued, an ostrich will bury its head in the sand, thinking it is hidden.
10. Stuff a cold and starve a fever.
11. One may get warts by touching a toad.
12. Wolves generally run in packs.

To score yourself, mark a score of 100 per cent correct if you marked all statements false except 1 and 6. These facts are scientifically proved true. Other statements are mere popular beliefs.

Prepare Wild Game Huntsman Bags Most Flavorful Way

By AGNES REASOR OLMSTEAD

If the huntsman in your family fares well he will be quite fussy about how his "bag" looks on the family dinner table. Right now he may confront you with rabbit, opossum, raccoon, squirrel or deer for the season is open on all of them. Later on he may come in with quail, wild duck, grouse or marsh hen.

Wild rabbits are possibly the most popular of all game. Some people prefer rabbits that are soaked in vinegar or wine before cooking. Others still hold to soaking in salted water. It is all a matter of taste.

RABBIT BAKED IN MILK

1 rabbit
½ cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon sage
3 tablespoons fat
3 strips bacon
4 cups thin white sauce

Cut dressed rabbit into pieces. Mix flour, salt and sage. Coat pieces thoroughly and saute in fat until brown on both sides. Place rabbit in casserole and lay bacon over top. Pour white sauce around meat. Bake in moderate oven, 375 degrees, for two hours or until meat is tender.

BROILED QUAIL

Split drawn and cleaned quail down the back. Brush with melted butter. Place skin side down on rack in broiler. Broil 6 to 7 minutes on each side. Serve on toast with melted butter and the drippings from the pan.

WILD DUCK OR GOOSE

Never soak a fine-flavored wild duck or goose in vinegar solution—too much of the natural, enjoyable gaminess will be removed. Wipe inside and out with a damp cloth after removing oil sac from tail. Salt inside of bird and stuff or not as desired. Sometimes only a few pieces of apple or orange are placed in the cavity. Wild rice or bread stuffings are sometimes used. Rub the prepared fowl with oil or butter or lay slices of salt pork over the breast and roast, uncovered, on a rack in an open roasting pan. Roast in a moderate oven, 325 degrees, until tender, about 25 or 30 minutes per pound. Baste frequently with drippings but add no water to the pan. Overcooking will dry out the meat. Wild duck usually is served rare.

BRAISED DUCK WITH ORANGE

1 onion
1 large carrot
1 stalk celery
Duck (1 pound per person)
3 cups veal stock or bouillon
Salt and pepper
½ cup orange juice
1 teaspoon lemon juice
2 tablespoons currant jelly

Slice vegetables and place in bottom of deep kettle. Place cleaned duck on top of vegetables and add stock. Cover and simmer ½ hour. Add salt and pepper and continue cooking until duck is tender. Remove duck, place in shallow roasting pan, and brown in 400 degree oven, uncovered. Strain drippings and remove fat. Add fruit juices and currant jelly. Thicken with cornstarch paste if desired. Heat through, then pour over duck and serve.

Atlanta Group Fetes National Officer at Tea

Mrs. Readie P. Ashurst of Atlanta, national vice-president of the American Business Women's Association, will be honored at a tea given by two Atlanta chapters of the organization. The event will take place from 4 to 7 p. m., Sunday, at 614 Page Ave., Northeast.

Mrs. Ashurst

Mrs. Ashurst is an Atlanta attorney and member of Atlanta Chapter 2.

Hostesses for the tea will be presidents and past presidents, Mrs. Julia Manley, Mrs. Clifford Webb, Miss June Wicker and Mrs. Opal Jackson.

Pastry Leaves

Use a cardboard pattern of familiar outline to cut out pastry leaves. Moisten edge and place ¼-inch strip of pastry along outer edge of leaf. Bake on ungreased cookie sheet at 450 degrees for 12-15 minutes. Fill with currant jelly and serve with tea or with canned fruit for desert.

He'll Foot the Bills Less Gruffly in These

By SCARLETT BLANTON

If he's a homebody . . . the old pipe-and-slippers boy, or even if he's not, here are a few little items to interest him.

SLIPPER SOCK COMFORT
Cable-stitch with rubber soles

Regardless of whether he likes to spend his time over a stamp collection or over a dry martini, basically he's the same when it comes to comfort . . . i. e., something easy on the feet.

This winter, there's news afoot in the slipper story. The man of the house can name his preference. If he is the loafer-type, he'll really go for the latest loafer-slipper. It's a honey-tan leather, with elasticized leather instep. They look like a high-style loafer, and if possible, are easier to slide in and out of. The lining is a gay McGregor tartan.

Another, a modified loafer, comes in a darker leather with a cushion sole and a solid lining.

For the more conservative man-around-the-house, there's a conventional type bedroom slipper, in caramel brown, with a variation on the old theme, a diagonal strip of dark leather across the toe.

As to the fellow who is out for solid comfort, nothing beats the good old sock slipper. The newest trend in this type slipper is a little number, cable stitched, with an inch-thick sponge rubber sole for walking on air.

Another favorite sock-slipper has an Indian motif knitted on the instep, and a soft doeskin sole. These slippers also come in the gentleman's favorite sock styles, with argyles leading the popularity list, and variations with diamond and checkerboard designs coming to the front.

Roof Leaks

Once a roof begins to crack, bulge, blister, rot or rust, have it checked. The stitch-in-time technique pays off in this instance. The renewal of protective coatings is especially important at this time of year when there is stormy weather ahead.

Most Roman locks were made of iron, and few have survived the rust of time. Favorite device was the padlock. This method was widely used by Mediterranean peoples and especially the Chinese in Asia.

Waistlines Are Going Higher and Higher

By NORA MARTIN

PARIS, Nov. 26—(INS)—Elsa Schiaparelli, who for years has helped women along the road to elegance, today is steering them toward higher waistlines.

The Italian-born Parisian designer favors high waistlines for both daytime and evening. This season she is providing the gadgets necessary to put the waistline where she wants it.

One of these devices is a corselet belt in sequin-embroidered leather. Another is an inset corselet, accented by contrasting materials or colors.

Still other ways and means of lifting the waist are embroidered and draped or tucked effects which start where the waistline really is and rise to the bosom.

Skirts are both full and straight. Schiaparelli's casual suits are in the classic style and strikingly simple. Jackets are shorter than those of last season and may be either loose or fitting. Woolen jackets have satin collars, combining two contrasting tints.

There are coats for every type of figure. They are still of the pyramid type but less full than previously. Sleeves are draped at the wrist or have a cut-off effect at the shoulders. Collars are flat and medium size. Linings may be in a contrasting color or in some unusual material.

Long and short evening coats in satin or felt are cut the same way but show a series of vivid colors.

Blouses, generally in jersey, are important fashion items and are draped and tucked to give the new high-waisted line.

Cocktail frocks have a strapless, low decollete but are always completed by matching boleros. Cotton-velvet dresses are a new fashion rage and are glamorous both in color and cut. These dresses are embroidered with sequins or combine two contrasting colors. Skirts are either full or narrow and neither trend predominates.

Wool fabrics have been used lavishly for formal dresses. Broadcloth and velvet are combined in one two-piece ensemble. A narrow, figure-molding black dress in velvet with red satin touches is a new version of the bi-colored look. This dress, with a high-placed satin belt in front, has an entire satin top at the back.

Bows appear frequently and give novel back effects when fixed, like angel wings, beneath the shoulders.

Among the hats, embroidered berets evoking the headgear of Italian peasants are made in velvet or felt. Of course, there is never a Schiaparelli collection without a freak—and this time it is a hat shaped like an angled chimney-flue.

All "Schiap" hats have a backward look and forward tilted hats are out as far as this collection is concerned.

Colors are lovelier than ever. The famous Schiaparelli "shocking red" is back again along with a dazzling array of vivid blues, dark reds, greens, turquoise and duck blue, alongside the inevitable black and white.

A sensational Cosmetic which acts like a "Face Lift"

A new cosmetic has appeared on the beauty horizon which does wonderful things for your face. It is almost unbelievable to see how quickly it pares off your age. You actually see and feel it making you more beautiful. This cosmetic takes only seconds to massage onto your skin, and this is what it does—it gives the face a firming, lifting, bracing feeling that tends to tighten flabby skin, and smooth away wrinkles, and bring a wonderful glow to the complexion. You can feel and see it work against age lines to help hold back years from your face. Wonder of wonders! Jawline puffiness, mouth-to-nose lines, and that tired look seem to disappear.

Quickly this new beauty liquid vanishes onto the skin and you are ready to apply your foundation and face powder. You will discover your make-up is smoother, more even—will look more beautiful because your skin is firm, lifted, tight. Any woman who wants to look fresh and glamorous will find it useful, but middle-aged women who are young in spirit and want to look their very best will find it almost indispensable.

No one will ever know your secret, because this new cosmetic becomes invisible on the skin—and that is how it gets its name, "Invisible Beauty Strap." This glorious new beauty lasts all day or all evening whenever you really need to look your best.

Your confidence is increased when you learn the originator is a famous beauty specialist, Frances Denney, who has always been very conservative in her claims.

Try it, don't lose another moment, convince yourself that you can look younger. It's so very easy, it takes so little time, and the results are definitely pleasing.

Invisible Beauty Strap is on sale in the cosmetic departments of Davison's Rich's.

Thoroughbreds thrive on Crimson Crops in SOUTHERN CITY, U.S.A.

Cover crops that provide year-round grazing, like crimson clover, blue lupine, ladino and lespedeza are painting a prosperous present and a rosy future for the livestock raisers and dairy farmers of the South. These magical crops, which nourish the soil as abundantly as they feed the cattle, are one of many developments that have more than tripled Southern City's agricultural income in the past ten years.

The four associated electric power companies of The Southern Company system are working constantly with county agents, universities and agricultural experiment stations to encourage farm mechanization, wider diversification of crops, greater prosperity for the farmer.

"Southern City," U.S.A. Our way of expressing as one unit the vast Southeast area of 100,000 square miles and 6,300,000 people served by the four associated electric power companies of The Southern Company system.

Symbol of the South's rising agricultural prosperity is the mechanical cotton picker. Greater farm mechanization and diversification, encouraged by the four operating companies of The Southern Company system, are building greater prosperity for the area which comprises "Southern City," U.S.A.

The entire nation is watching Southern City's remarkable progress in agriculture, industry, commerce. Over 100,000 stockholders of The Southern Company, located in every state in the Union, are vitally interested because this progress assures a constant and growing demand for electric power—a demand which, by conservative estimate, will be doubled in the next ten years.

The South and The Southern Company are both growing . . . together!

Danger of Water Waste Emphasized by Report

Atlanta Residents Consume 50-Gallon Average Per Day

By BILL BORING

Spot shortages of water were reported last summer from coast to coast.

Subway riders in New York City saw city-sponsored posters that warned of "danger" from wasting water.

A lawyer in Dallas, Texas, defended his green lawn with a sign: "This water comes from my own private well."

Many residents in Metropolitan Atlanta watched their lawns and gardens die and left their cars unwashed to conserve water during a severe drouth.

Does all of this mean we are running out of water? As a nation, the answer is "no." But the population and industrial growth of some regions is straining supplies not geared to heavy demands. In view of this situation, communities throughout the country are re-assessing their water availability and potential.

A special report on the water resources of the Atlanta metropolitan area is now available, M. T. Thompson, district engineer of the U. S. Geological Survey here, announced Monday. This report, prepared by R. W. Carter and S. M. Herrick, both of the survey, gives a summary of all available information on use and availability of water in the area within 20 miles of downtown Atlanta.

TAKEN FOR GRANTED

The need of such a survey is emphasized by the fact that Atlantans in the past have taken the availability of water for granted. Even our industrialists, who need water in vast quantities to keep their plants running, aren't too aware of the situation. For example, in a recent survey the National Association of Manufacturers discovered that 42 per cent of the city's industrialists didn't know the potentialties for expansion of water use.

The authors of the report, omitting most of the scientific language that makes water resources reports hard to understand, attempt to answer some of the questions people should know about their water suppy.

For example, how much water does Atlanta use?

Water demands for domestic purposes average about 50 gallons a day for each resident, the report reveals. Commercial establishments use a total of 16,000,000 gallons of water a day. Georgia Power Company's Plant Atkinson uses 430,000,000 gallons a day for cooling condensers.

MILLIONS OF GALLONS

The overall total use of water in the Atlanta metropolitan area amounts to 519,000,000 gallons of surface water daily and 17,400,000 gallons of ground water. Of 94,000,000 gallons a day used for domestic, commercial and industrial use, 80 per cent returns to the Chattahoochee River. Thus, the present supply needed is 447,000,000 gallons a day.

Is this supply adequate? Will it care for future industrial growth? Has the rate of water interception increased? Is the water table falling? These are vital questions, each of which is answered in the report.

Regarding the interception of water, statistics in the report show that the city's pumping rate increased 50 per cent from 1940 to 1950.

Regarding the stream flow of the Chattahoochee, the city's chief source of water, the report states gauging stations on the river provide continuous records since 1903 of the stream flow that averages 2,710 cubic feet per second. Generally speaking the flow is neither better nor worse than it has been. The minimum flow was 154 cubic feet per second in August, 1925. This low figure, however, was partly due to two power dams that are no longer operating; so if a similar drouth occurred now, the minimum flow would be 230 cubic feet per second.

Would that flow be sufficient? Regarding this, the report states: "The Atkinson Power Plant requires more water than is now available in drouth years and would operate less efficiently or be forced to greatly reduce its output should a drouth like that of 1926 recur before the Buford Dam is finished."

The construction of the Buford Dam or some other dam to equalize the flow of the Chattahoochee is needed to assure the future growth and development of the area. When the Buford Dam is completed, it is anticipated there will be enough water in the river to supply the growing city, the power plant, and almost any type of industry that wishes to locate in the area.

The river then will have a minimum flow of 400,000,000 gallons a day and daily fluctuations in flow will provide an additional 850,000,000 gallons every day except Sunday and Monday. Only a small re-regulation dam would be necessary to smooth out the fluctuations and provide a minimum flow of 1,050,000,000 gallons a day.

The writers conclude that the improved low-flow characteristics of the river should attract many large industries to Atlanta.

In a section on ground water, the report states that, contrary to popular belief, the water table does not become lower each successive year except in local areas of excessive pumping. Over a period of seven years the water table has risen and fallen within a range of 12 feet at East Point.

Tables of chemical analyses accompanying the report show the excellent industrial quality of the river waters in the Atlanta area. "The surface waters in the vicinity have a low mineral content and are very soft. Yearly average hardness of the Chattahoochee at Atlanta is only 11 parts in 1,000,000. This is the sofest water supply of any large city in the U. S. east of the Pacific Coast."

The report also states that in the past 20 years there has been a marked decrease in the silt load carried by the Chatttahoochee.

Cotton Futures Close Mixed

NEW YORK, Nov. 26—(AP)—Cotton futures were firm Monday as short covering in nearby December imparted strength in the balance of the market. Dealers expected very few December notices to be issued, reflecting the firm situation in spot cotton. Certificated cotton stocks have been declining and now total only 6,296 bales.

Gains in futures extended to better than $2 a bale, although hedging and profit taking pared part of the advance. Additional firmness in futures stemmed from expectations of a lower government crop forecast on Dec. 10.

Washington advices indicated that arrangements have been completed for the $50,000,000 Export-Import cotton credit to Germany which dealers estimated will cover purchases of more than 200,000 bales of cotton.

Futures closed $2.15 a bale higher to 30 cents lower than the previous close.

Distant futures were easy in relatively inactive trading.

Sugar Futures

of interest in raws brought selling into the world sugar futures Monday.

Domestic sugar futures were steady but neglected, with traders awaiting Washington hearings later this week on determination of the 1952 sugar marketing quota for the United States. The Secretary of Agriculture will announce the quota in December following the hearings. Traders, thought that the quota will be somewhat under the starting quota of this year of 8,000,000 short tons because of sagging prices and a good deal lower distribution of sugar than in 1950.

Cuban world raws were sold locally Monday at 4.75 cents a pound fob.

There was no definite offering or buying interest in 1951 domestic quota sugars. There were some offerings of 1952 quota Cubas at 5.85 cents a pound delivered.

Demand for refined was slow.

Stocks Rally But Volume Stays Low

New York Times News Service
Special to The Atlanta Constitution

NEW YORK, Nov. 26—The Stock Market staged its first real recovery move Monday in more than a week as prices firmed near the close after a sloppy start. The reversal of trend was paced by the rails, televisions, some of the oils and the leading automotives. Business remained at a slow tempo despite the upturn with sales on the stock exchange diminishing to 1,180,000 shares against 1,210,000 shares on last Friday.

Price alterations in excess of a point were more numerous than in the past two weeks while the composite rate, as measured by the New York Times index, advanced 0.87 point. Interest broadened slightly to include 1,129 individual stocks. At the finish, 545 were higher and 326 lower.

In the opinion of Wall Street observers, the day's performance was purely a mechanical one and unassociated with any news developments. While there was some disposition to regard the progress of the Korean truce talks as a blanket on the so-called "war babies," technical observers continued to point out that there could be little if any slowdown in the defense program. Korea has long since been written off, therefore, as a market factor of major consequence.

General Motors topped the list in turnover on 12,000 shares but showed a loss of ⅛ point at 49¼, although Chrysler added ⅞ point to end at 67⅜. Gains in the radio-television division ranged from fractions to 1⅝ points in both Zenith and Motorola.

Northern Pacific remained a favored trading medium but its volume shrank to 9,800 shares. At the closing rate of 58⅝, this issue showed an increase of 1⅞ points. Other carriers rose fractions to as much as 1¼ points in Atlantic Coast Line.

The steels were ahead fractions to 1¼ points in National. U. S. Steel at 39⅜ was up ⅛ and Bethlehem ½ point at 49¼. American Cyanamid was the pacesetter for the chemicals with a rise of 1⅜ points and Du Pont staged a recovery of ⅝ point after hitting a new low of 82. U. S. Rubber led the tire division on an advance of 1⅛ points with J. C. Penney the leader among the mail-order issues.

American Telephone added ½ point at 156⅝. Standard Oil of New Jersey rose ¾ point at 67⅞ and others in the petroleum group showed advantages of fractions to 1½ points in Deep Rock Oil.

Grains Ahead At the Close

CHICAGO, Nov. 26—(AP)—Grains wound up with fair-sized gains on the Board of Trade Monday after taking an early spill.

Initial selling apparently was based on the Korean news. It knocked prices down around a cent. But this was followed quickly by a brisk recovery, sending all prices well above Saturday's close. Trading was very active during this first hour.

Thereafter, the market drifted along with a slightly lower trend noted shortly before the close, when renewed buying entered wheat and prices again rose. Mills bought wheat. Much support was based on hopes for large exports in the near future.

Wheat closed ¾-2¼ higher, December $2.63½-¾, Corn 1⅜-1⅞ higher, December $1.88-1.88¼. Oats 1⅜-1⅞ higher, December 97⅞-98. Rye (new style) 1¼-2⅛ higher, December $1.01. Soybeans 1¼-1¾ higher, January $2.99¼. Lard 5 cents lower to 8 cents a hundred pounds higher, December $15.45.

ACCIDENT ROUNDUP

Stork Visits Mother Shortly After Crash

Two expectant mothers were injured in automobile accidents on their way to Grady Hospital Monday, police reported. One of them later gave birth to a seven-pound girl.

Mrs. Betty Jewel Welchel, 23-year-old housewife of 972 Hampton St., N. W., was said by hospital attaches to be in "fair" condition, with leg injuries at Grady, after the car in which she was a passenger collided with a truck at Edgewood Ave. and Ivy St., Northeast.

Mrs. Welchel was admitted to the Grady obstetric ward.

Ptl. C. L. Huddleston and W. D. Eblen said the car carrying Mrs. Welchel, driven by Henry Dewey Parker, 35, of 559 Luckie St., N. W., collided with a panel truck operated by a Negro, Willie James Taylor, 21, of 449 Auburn Ave., N. E. The Parker vehicle was hurled against a utility pole nearby as a result of the crash. Parker was treated for abrasions and bruises.

Berenice Williams, 20, of 888 Coleman St., S. W., gave birth to a seven-pound baby girl after escaping with minor bruises when the ambulance in which she was a patient heading for Grady was demolished in a collision at Washington St. and Georgia Ave., S. W.

The ambulance driver, Willie Lee Williams, 51-year-old Negro, of 228 School St., N. E., and a truck driver, Kenneth M. Cooper, 37, of Stratford Dr., S. W., both claimed they had a green light as they approached the intersection.

Police charged both drivers with overrunning a red light accident.

In another accident, police said a 28-year-old Negro woman, identified as Lewse Patterson, of 828 Ponce de Leon Pl., N. E., was the victim of an alleged hit-and-run driver.

Physicians said the woman was treated for severe lacerations and bruises. Police said she walked into the side of an auto on Houston St. between Bell and Fort Sts., Northeast.

Others treated were: 69-year-old Charles Presley Houston, of 1466 Ryan St., S. W., who walked into an auto in the 1600 block of Langston Ave., S. W., suffering shoulder bruises, and Robert Leon Moody, 6, of 412 Georgia Ave., S. E., who fell from his bike near his home, receiving mouth and head lacerations.

Injunction Sought In Fairburn Race

George Thomas, candidate for mayor of Fairburn in the Dec. 1 election, attempted Monday to keep fellow-candidate J. K. Currie's name off the ballot.

Judge Frank Guess of the Stone Mountain Circuit Superior Court, signed an order directing City Clerk T. J. Elliot to appear at 10 a. m. Thursday to show cause why he should not be enjoined from putting Currie's name on the ballot.

Thomas asked for the injunction, alleging that Currie, the incumbent, could not serve as mayor because his term as councilman has not expired. Currie has been serving as mayor by appointment.

Israel Bond Drive Sparked by Talk

Israel is politically and spiritually free, but it still has to gain its economic freedom, Ralph J. Kaplan, Israeli educator, said Monday as he made an appeal for the sale of Israeli government bonds.

Speaking to about 500 persons at the Mayfair Club, Kaplan said a $250 bond would set up a machine shop for an Israelite. A $50 bond would build a house for a family who might not have had privacy for 12 years, he said.

Kaplan, Moshe Wilensky, pianist, and Shoshana Damari, singer, appeared as part of a "good will caravan" touring the nation for the campaign to sell $500,000,000 Israeli bonds.

Tech Offers Night Course In Physics

An adult course in radiation physics which requires no previous training will be offered at night at Georgia Tech during the winter quarter.

The course will be sponsored by the Civil Defense Division, Department of Defense of Georgia, the School of Physics at Georgia Tech and the Engineering Extension of Georgia Tech.

Topics to be taught include elementary nuclear physics, effects of radiation, radiation instruments and radiological defense, with classes meeting for three hours, one night a week for 12 weeks.

John H. Tolan, research physicist at the Engineering Experiment Station, Georgia Tech, will be instructor. A graduate of Georgia Tech in physics, Tolan has done graduate work in radiological physics under a fellowship granted by the Atomic Energy Commission. He later was transferred to Oak Ridge for field training with the Health Physics Division.

Sponsors explained the course would "indicate how the recent remarkable advances in science have forced a drastic change in our entire civilization."

They added the course would include discussion of the atomic bomb, "which does not necessarily mean disaster, for protection is possible."

A meeting time will be determined at the first organizational meeting after the start of the winter quarter, Jan. 3. Persons interested in enrolling in the course should contact the Engineering Evening School at Georgia Tech.

Ga. R. R. Tax Case Studied By High Court

The United States Supreme Court Monday took under advisement the question of whether the State of Georgia has the right to tax property of the Georgia Railroad and Banking Company.

Freeman Smith, company lawyer, appearing before the court in Washington, contended the Georgia laws involved are unconstitutional.

Hardeman Blackshear Jr., deputy assistant attorney general of Georgia, answering a question from Justice Tom Clark on the possibility of a suit, said "Georgia has no reluctance to bring suit at the present time to recover the taxes." However, an injunction prevented suit at present, he added.

When Justice Hugo Black asked if the state couldn't sue immediately, Justice Robert Jackson interposed: "I can't see anything would be accomplished but to delay getting the question here."

Annexation Main Topic Of Hapeville Candidates

Annexation of Hapeville to Atlanta continued to loom as the most far-reaching campaign issue in Hapeville's mayor and council races Monday night as citizens of the suburb heard from the candidates at a political rally sponsored by the Community Council.

Eugene Dixon, 44-year-old Hapeville councilman who is running for mayor, said that annexation "is no issue."

"You don't need a complicated platform in a small city like Hapeville," Dixon explained. "Such things as annexation or a Negro question just aren't issues."

Dixon told of accomplishments of the City Council since he has been a member. He emphasized that the election Dec. 4 "is more important than ever with our boys dying in Korea so we can have our public meetings and elections."

Attorney Frank Lea, 36, another candidate for mayor, said he was definitely opposed to annexation, and said that the financial issue in annexation wouldn't have come up if the finances of Hapeville were all right.

He said the city needs a "well-thought-out budget," should hold the line in taxes and should make city finances public "so the people will know where they stand."

Dr. L. M. Hewitt, a dentist, spoke for mayoralty candidate J. D. McLucas, who was absent because of illness.

"Annexation is definitely not McLucas' platform as some think," Dr. Hewitt emphasized. "His whole idea is investigation of such a proposal: if Hapeville could gain by annexation, the people should know it and should vote on the question."

Dr. Hewitt said McLucas, if elected, would form a committee to investigate annexation, studying such points as lack of a water system, and future garbage disposal, street maintenance and problems.

Clyde Mills, the fourth candidate for mayor, said the Plan of Improvement caused the annexation problem, and called it "the Plan of Invasion."

Mills said if elected he would "put the pressure on the police department" to stop "wild, reckless speeding" in Hapeville.

Atom Powered Submarine By 1953, Scientist Predicts

By BETTY WILKISON

By 1953 science will have made possible an atomic-powered submarine and scientists will have cracked photosynthesis—the secret of plant life and growth, Dr. Gerald Wendt, director of Science Education for UNESCO and one of the world's top scientists, said here Monday.

He also predicted the coming of a 24-hour work-week and a life expectancy of 80 years as other fruits of science.

Lecturing at Emory University on atomic energy and its uses, Wendt said the first atomic-powered submarine was "promised to be ready sometime in 1953." He predicted the atomic engine, like the diesel engine, would be successful in the submarine and be installed in other naval vessels, completely revolutionizing the Navy.

"The biggest overall consequence of the engine development will be its use in big industrial plants—but that will not be in the United States," says Wendt.

"We have so much cheap coal, I don't believe atomic energy can compete.

"I expect to see atomic power plants built first in South America, though I wouldn't be surprised if Russia were first. Russia has coal, but she has to haul it long distances," he said.

Of Russia's atomic power, he said, "I'm very much of the opinion the Russians have a number of very good bombs and as powerful as ours. They are spending as much money as we are and we have no scientific secrets.

"But I'm not afraid of an atomic war, because the Russians are not able to make the bombs in quantity.

"This means they must use their bombs for special efforts, say on our stockpile—if they could find it—and to prevent an invasion. Knowing this I can't believe they'll start an atomic war," he reasoned.

The scientist believes the biggest atomic benefits of all will come from the use of new radioactive materials in research—the isotope program.

"One of the biggest problems we have to solve is how the green leaf builds a plant out of sunshine, carbon dioxide and water. All life depends on that reaction.

"So much has been learned within the past two or three years, I expect the problem to be solved within the next two or three years," he said.

Dr. Bohne's Mother Dies

Bohne of Atlanta; three sisters, Mrs. Leo Rooney of Mobile, Ala.; Mrs. Charles Nelson of Liverpool, Eng., and Mrs. Louis McFaul of New Orleans; a brother, Waldemer Heidemann of New Orleans; nine grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

Admits Part In Viaduct Fight; Victim in Coma

Homicide detectives Monday arrested 27-year-old Calvin Bowen of 137 Savannah St., S. E., on assault and battery charges in connection with the Saturday night poolroom altercation that ended with Jackie Coogan Bailey, 26, of 153 Hunter St., S. E., being thrown down a 15-foot viaduct wall at Wall and Pryor streets.

Coogan, still unconscious and in "critical" condition at Grady Hospital, still has not been questioned by detectives.

But, Dets. J. W. Ellington and H. E. Burdette said Monday that Bowen admitted fighting with Bailey over a $1 bet and "getting the worst of it until they put us out of the poolroom."

Thirty-five-year-old Alvin Shaw of 405 Whitehall St., S. W., was admitted to Grady with a broken nose and a sprained back, the victim of pranksters who, he said, either pushed him or chased him off a railroad trestle on Pryor Road.

Boy, 12, Killed By Gun in Hands Of His Sister

A 12-year-old Negro boy Monday was accidentally killed by a shotgun charge fired by his 9-year-old sister, College Park Police said.

The charge struck Charlie Frank Hollis Jr. in the chest, Ptl. T. W. Hardy and S. M. Gaston said. They added the 9-year-old girl and three younger children, who were playing together when the accident occurred, were placed in custody of Fulton County juvenile authorities.

The father, Frank Hollis Sr., was at work. The mother left the children alone in a small shack near College Park Golf Course, police said. The children were playing with a 12-gauge, single-barrel shotgun when the weapon suddenly discharged, the report showed.

Horn Blowers Face Crackdown By Police Here

Automobile horn honkers are headed for traffic court under an order issued Monday by Police Chief Herbert Jenkins.

A section of the city code prohibits the use of a horn except in cases of emergency, Jenkins pointed out. He said the same code section bans the car horn when used to create" . . . any unreasonably loud or harsh sound or to produce noise for any unreasonable or unnecessary length of time."

"We are receiving an increasing number of reports of the anti-noise ordinance being violated, especially car horn blowing," Jenkins declared. "Presumably holiday shopping is bringing more and more persons into the downtown section. Heavy traffic sometimes grates upon the most considerate of drivers. But we are having complaints and they must stop."

Check Asked On Chief Of Welfare

Impersonal Plea DeKalb Solon Says

By MARJORY SMITH

A recommendation that Georgia's welfare director be put under the merit system and that "a committee of well-informed citizens continually evaluate the state's welfare program to see that every welfare dollar goes where it is supposed to go" came here Monday from James A. Mackay, DeKalb county representative.

Mackay told the Community Planning Council's Family and Child Care Division:

"Georgia has a $43 000,000 welfare program, and we're putting people in the saddle in administration after administration who don't know anything about welfare work!"

The DeKalb County representative emphasized he was "not taking a dig at Alan Kemper," current state welfare director.

LONG-RANGE PLAN

Mackay said he would not himself introduce such a bill "because it might be regarded as a personal piece of legislation."

After Mackay's talk, division members passed a resolution calling on the Georgia Conference of Social Workers to establish a state-wide committee of "informed public citizens" to study the state welfare program.

Mackay told division members Gov. Talmadge's "official silence on the Loretto Chappell case" illustrated what he termed a current "bad breach between the administration and social workers."

He referred to a recent investigation of Miss Loretto Chappell," retired child welfare director whom Kemper had attempted to fire because of her alleged "lack of co-operation."

Mackay, an attorney, defended Miss Chappell at a hearing contesting the attempted ouster.

Informed of the council's action, Kemper objected to placing his job under a Merit System, and suggested the "well-informed citizens watch Washington, instead of Atlanta, to see that the welfare dollar is properly spent." The federal government sets the policies, he declared; and the state has to comply if it shares the money."

Department Chiefs Asked For Ideas on '53 Budget

By HERMAN HANCOCK

Mayor Hartsfield Monday called all City department heads to a discussion of Plan of Improvement problems at 10 a. m. next Monday as fiscal officers began a study of the 1953 budget.

Determined to make the Plan of Improvement function, the mayor asked every division chief to appear at the conference prepared to tell what plans he has made for activating the plan next January.

Hartsfield's call was issued as Councilman Ralph Huie, finance committee chairman, and Lawrence James and Earl Landers, comptroller and assistant comptroller, respectively, began a series of conferences with department heads over 1953 budgetary requirements. The conferences probably will last the entire week.

Contrasted with budget preparation in former years, finance officials this year must do considerable guessing and estimating. The inclusion of the new area with its approximately 90,000 inhabitants will present new problems in financing. In former years the City was empowered to anticipate 99 per cent of the former year's revenues. Under a special act of the Georgia Legislature, the municipality has been authorized to anticipate for the 1952 budget all revenue it thinks will come from the 82 square miles added.

Preliminary estimates place 1953 anticipated collections at $26,000,000 from all sources and are based on a tax digest carrying values listed at $576,000,000.

Hartsfield said he has invited the Atlanta Budget Commission and City Attorney Jack Savage to attend the department heads' conference and is anxious for a full attendance.

The mayor also announced that a scheduled parade of new City equipment next January 7 through downtown Atlanta will be postponed until sometime in May when more of the new equipment will have been received. He has proposed the parade to stimulate interest in an expanded Atlanta.

Supply Bids Opened

Council purchasing committee Monday opened bids on approximately $90,000 worth of supplies and equipment, including $22,000 for traffic signals, $23,000 for street paving, $15,000 for new motorcycles for the Police Department, and $10,700 for trucks. Sam Finley, Inc., was the apparent low bidder on paving of Van Vleck Street from Posley to Ora Avenue, and on Chappell Road from Mozley Place to Mozley Drive. The company asked $21,078 for the two jobs. McIntosh Paving Co., Inc., was apparent low bidder for paving Hirsch Street from Tenth to Calhoun Street, asking $2,763.16 for the project. The bids went to the Construction department for tabulation.

Rezoning Petition

Council's Planning Commission will hold a special hearing at 2 p. m. Tuesday at the City Hall on a petition signed by 51 per cent of the property owners on West Peachtree St. between 14th and 19th Sts. seeking to rezone the property from apartment to business use. The commission deferred a hearing on the proposal at its Nov. 14 session.

Shift Proposed

Councilman Wayne Blanchard has called a special meeting of Council's health and sanitation committee for 1:15 p. m. Thursday to consider a proposal to shift sewer flushing activities from the Sanitary department to the Construction department's sewer division.

3 Hearings Slated

Three hearings are scheduled for a meeting of City Council's police committee at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday at the Police Station. Ben Lala, operator of Leo's Buffet, 25 Forsyth St., is expected to ask a rehearing on revocation of his beer and wine sale permit. Demands for revocation of the operating permit for a hotel at 454 Auburn Avenue, N. E., and the beer and wine and dance permit for the Poinciana Club, 145 Auburn Ave., N. E., also are slated.

Ask Widening Delay

A petition to defer the sidewalk widening on Marietta St. between Broad and Forsyth Sts. until after Christmas will be presented to Council's public works committee at a meeting set for 2 p. m. Thursday. Ray Nixon, engineer of streets, says he has a letter from Lane's Drug Store at the southwest corner of Marietta and Broad Sts., and other merchants urging that the work be delayed.

Lee Gets Deduction

Lee's Peachtree Shop at 220 Peachtree St., N. E., will get a 50 per cent reduction in its 1951 tax bill because of a caving wall at the old Masonic Temple if Council follows a recommendation of its Tax Committee. Executives of the shop pointed out that the wall fell while it was being razed after the Masonic Temple fire and that the shop was closed for months.

Fortner To Entertain

City department heads may leave a meeting of the Association of Administrative Department Heads Tuesday night with traffic tickets in their pockets. Clem H. Fortner, a city patrolman and amateur magician with a professional touch, is to provide the entertainment when the group meets at 6 p. m. at Mammy's Shanty, Lawrence James, city comptroller and organization president, said.

Filling Station Problem

Another battle over a proposal to erect a filling station at 14th St. and Hemphill Ave. is expected at a meeting of Council's Water Committee at 2:30 p. m. Tuesday. The Wofford Oil Co. wants to make the installation, but Paul Weir, waterworks manager, and others oppose it because it is close to key water mains which pass through the intersection. The committee approved the station about two weeks ago, but it was sent back to the committee on motion of Councilman James E. Jackson, water committee chairman.

Narcotics, Cash Listed as Loot In 5 Burglaries

Burglars reaped a heavy profit in cash and narcotics in a series of five raids on business establishments over the weekend, police said Monday.

Georgia drug store at 260 Boulevard, N. E., lost a safe containing an assortment of morphine, $400, more than 100 cartons of cigarettes, a radio and two watches. Sgt. W. D. Anderson and Det. R. C. Pendley said the safe later was found in a truck in a parking lot on Parkway Dr., N. E.

Yeggmen made off with $235 after punching open a safe at the Neon Service Co., 400 Forrest Ave., N. E., police said. Other places looted for lesser amounts included an electrical appliance establishment at 273 Peachtree St., N. E.; J. E. Hanger, Inc., 134 Baker St., N. 2d Royals Trial Opens in Valdosta

VALDOSTA, Nov. 26—(AP)—A Lanier County farmer accused of killing his two small grandchildren for insurance, went on trial a second time for his life Monday.

Chief witness against Carthy Royals as his retrial opened, was his codefendant of a year ago, Sam Phillips. Phillips was convicted of murder in connection with the case and sentenced to life imprisonment after the jury recommended mercy.

Royals' daughter and her husband Ernest Browning listened as Phillips, dressed in prison garb, testified that Royals told him he killed the Brownings two small children.

Royals was sentenced last year to be electrocuted. He won a new trial when the Georgia Supreme Court ruled that the jury was improperly in possession of a written statement by Phillips while deliberating the case.

My Secretary Speaks

Dear Boss — Judge Saul Streit's attack on college athletic hypocrisy won tremendous national publicity. However, two days later, Florida state colleges were announcing plans for additional athletic scholarships. This money is raised by, and this will kill you, an extra day of racing at horse and dog tracks! Florida college rooting section should include separate cheers for Hialeah, Tropical Park and Gulfstream. Plus one for the Biscayne dog track. . . . Professional gamblers say that bribery of college stars will end now that bookmakers are out of business. No sense bribing players if you can't make big bets and cash in on your larceny. . . . "Guys and Dolls" on its first ann'y has grossed $2,310,000. . . . Henry Morgenthau Jr.-Marcelle Hirsch honeymooning confirmed your line.

Laurence Olivier and Vivien Leigh's "Caesar and Cleopatra" advance sale for its N. Y. run is $750,000 (opens here Dec. 19). . . . Army's Blaik may switch to U. of Pennsylvania? . . . George Elsey, administrative ass't. to President Truman, to wed Sally Bradley. . . . Louis B. Mayer getting ready to invade TV. . . . Winston Churchill 77 Friday. . . . Vito Marcantonio and Paul Robeson may head leftist '52 ticket. . . . "Deteetive Story" is the best movie I've seen in too long. Kirk Douglas and Horace McMahon top a magnificent cast. . . . Anthony Eden to rewed. . . . Irene Selznick after Kate Hepburn for a Broadway show. . . . Dan Topping and Alice Lawson at La Vie en Rose. . . . Mrs. Jim Thorpe called to say thanks.

Sumner Welles to wed the ex-Baroness Harriet Post von Jeszensky, in January. . . . Bea Lillie in from Europe on the 30th. . . . City Center staff explosion. . . . Daughter of American Woolen prexy, Katherine White, to blend with John Hart 3d. . . . Robert Donat ailing. . . . Phil Regan's daughter, Marilyn, weds Air Force's Carl Sacks, Dec. 17. . . . Maurice Chevalier's next will be a soon divorced French actress. . . . Yvonne de Carlo and Steve Cochran serious. . . . Sunny Ingraham dating Freddie Lewisohn. . . . The Robert Taylor-Barbara Stanwyck divorce due in February. . . . Add Fifth Ave. Decorations: Claudette Colbert, Rosalind Russell, Ann Sheridan.

Sir Stork winging to the Charles Blacks (Shirley Temple), the Tommy Dorseys, the Audie Murphys, the Ken Murrays, the Louis Marxes. . . King Baudouin of Belgium may take Princess Isabelle of France as his Queen. . . . "Red Shoes" coining over $1,500,000 in Argentina. . . . The Stan Meyers (er dad is Universal prexy, Nate Blumberg) adopted twins. . . . Dear Ed: Jimmy Lunceford was a great guy to work for, but hardly a great arranger. Credit for that goes to Sy Oliver, Edwin Wilcox and William Smith. Sincerely, Harry Wells. . . . You called the turn on Franchot Tone and B. Payton.

Henry R. Luce's ass't, Edward Finch, marrying Ruth Woodward (she's the golf writer). . . . Merle Oberon and Dr. Rex Ross have set the date. . . . The James Masons (Pamela Kellino) coastbound. . . . Catholic Institute of the Press Ball, Hotel Biltmore, Dec. 5. . . . Ruth Casey's platter, "Cry," easy on the ears. . . . Maestro Art Waner starting his fifth year at Latin Quarter. . . . Dr. Margaret Loder to be named president of the Westchester County Medical Society. . . . Radio City Music Hall gets "The Greatest Show on Earth" in January. . . . Grand Central Terminal readying Christmas carol programs via P. A. system.

Postmaster Albert Goldman's mailmen collecting Christmas toys (700 needy children were taken care of last year). . . . State Dept. aid, Evelyn Buell, to wed Col. Douglas H. Watt. . . . The Fletcher Markles (Mercedes McCambridge) expect a January stork. . . . Charles Feldman with Dolly O'Brien. . . . Add Clicks: Fred Waring's Decca platter "Monastery Bells," the Facundo Rivero stars at Chateau Madrid, Scotty Graham at the Park Avenue. . . . Inflation note: 10th Ave. hot-dog peddler sign: "Soda without frank—8c." . . . Former members of 409th Bomb Group (Light), contact B. Bernstein, 7626 North Eastlake Terrace, Chicago, Ill. AMELIA.

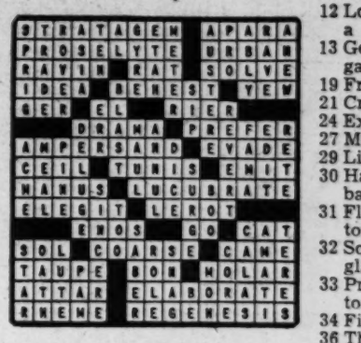

Elberton Yuletide Set

"Quo vadis?"

"Whither goest thou?" asked Peter of Christ, as he met our Saviour going toward Nero's menacing Rome.

In December Reader's Digest, A. J. Cronin tells of his rich spiritual experience at the shrine where, according to legend, the two met.

Read how he believes we can remedy the sense of futility that haunts us today . . . why the solution of the world's problems must begin in the hearts of individuals . . . why "Quo vadis?" is the sobering question you should ask yourself as you rush through life.

Dr. BRADY

Tonsil Treatment

Reader who says she is 42 mentions recent medical history (1) secondary anemia, (2) tonsillitis or streptococcus sore throat once a year, (3) rheumatoid condition, (4) several months ago a bladder infection. In each instance the doctor has urged her to have her tonsils removed. One doctor assured her that her "rheumatoid condition" will clear up if she gets rid of her infected tonsils. All of her ills, the doctors say, are due to the infected tonsils.

Well?

The reader told the doctor she is afraid to have her tonsils removed. The doctor assured her there is no danger in her case. Why not? Because she is thin. She says she doesn't get it. Neither do I—but then, that's only one of many strange things about radical tonsillectomy—the attempt to remove every bit of tonsil tissue from the throat—that I do not comprehend.

The attempt to remove the entire tonsil, I say. It is only an attempt and the attempt is seldom successful. In the majority of cases more or less tonsil tissue remains in the throat after radical tonsillectomy, no matter who commits the atrocity. Atrocity, I say. How any doctor or specialist can regard surgical tonsillectomy as anything but atrocious, when the patient has presumably infected tonsils, is more than I can understand—unless it be that the doctor or specialist is ignorant of modern therapeutic developments.

The doctor who assured the reader that her "rheumatoid condition" will clear up if she gets rid of her infected tonsils was not quite honest. No doctor or specialist can give a patient such assurance in any circumstance. What he might have told her honestly is that maybe, or more likely, or he hopes the "rheumatoid condition" will clear up after she gets rid of the infection which he believes is present in one or both of her tonsils. That's all any honest doctor or specialist can say about tonsillectomy in any instance.

I beg to inform this reader, who says long reading of my articles has made her afraid of tonsillectomy (I'm glad to hear that, and I hope thousands of other readers are afraid of it), I beg to tell her that in most progressive communities there is available conservative treatment for infected tonsils—treatment that is at least as effective as the dangerous tonsillectomy and at the same time as safe as the filling of a tooth by the dentist.

Calcutta Visit Begins Bowles' Tour of India

CALCUTTA, India, Nov. 26 (AP)—U. S. Ambassador Chester Bowles arrived Monday for a three-day visit.

His trip is in accordance with a promise he made at New Delhi to visit all sections of India so that he may know not only the country's leaders, but also its people.

Bowles told a news conference that he does not consider India's attitude in the United Nations a bar to the import of American capital. He added that India is a good risk and attributed the lack of American capital investment in this country to the investment outlook in the United States and the rearmament program.

Mexican's Conviction Upheld; 'Vogeler' Charges Ignored

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26—(AP). The Supreme Court Monday brushed aside contentions that it was dealing with an "American Vogeler case" and upheld the Nebraska manslaughter conviction of a Mexican citizen.

The high tribunal split 6-2 in rejecting the plea of Agapita Callegos that a confession he gave police should not have been used against him because it was obtained during 25 days of "illegal" detention.

In other actions, the Supreme Court:

1. Voted 5-2 to restore full American citizenship to a native of Germany once ordered deported because he admitted he lied in swearing he would fight for the United States. The justices noted, however, that the government is free to make a new effort to send Peter Alxons Bindczyk of Elmhurst, L. I., back to Germany so long as it follows precisely the steps set forth in a 1940 immigration law.

2. Let stand unchanged a Chicago Circuit Court decision that the National Labor Relations Act does not protect union members who refuse to cross a picket line in a strike in which they are not involved.

3. Refused to rule at this time on a union appeal which challenged the validity of Virginia's Public Utilities Labor Relations Act. The law does not ban strikes, but provides among other things for at least five weeks' strike notice to give the state time to obtain workers to operate the utility in event it is seized by the state.

The Nebraska case had an unusual beginning.

Gallegos was arrested Sept. 19, 1948, in El Paso County, Texas, on request of immigration authorities. A statement he gave county police there led to the discovery of the body of his common law Mexican wife in a grave on a farm near Minatare, Neb. He was taken to Scotts Bluff County, Neb., convicted of manslaughter and sentenced to 10 years in the Nebraska state penitentiary.

Gallegos contended his detention was illegial because he was not arraigned promptly after his arrest, and because 27 days elapsed before an attorney was appointed to defend him.

Justice Reed delivered the majority decision.

Justice Black wrote a dissent in which Justice Douglas joined.

Justice Minton took no part.

But Black's dissent declared:

"Americans justly complain when their fellow citizens in certain European countries are pounced upon at will by state police, held in jail incommunicado and later convicted of crimet on confessions obtained during such incarceration. Yet, in part on such a confession this court today affirms Nebraska's conviction of a citizen of Mexico who can neither read nor understand English."

Black added:

"There are countries where arbitrary arrests, like this, followed by secret imprisonment and systematic questioning until confessions are obtained, are stilll recognized and permissible procedures."
